

A stylized illustration of four figures in white robes, possibly representing the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, set against a gold background. The figures are depicted in a dynamic, dancing pose. The figure on the right is the largest and most prominent, holding a staff or scepter. The other three figures are smaller and positioned to the left. The overall style is reminiscent of a tapestry or a stylized print.

The long halls are quiet and empty and lonely, but they are marked with the sounds of students and teachers who pass through them and who are now gone. When they are empty, these hallowed halls seem so long that one will never reach the end. But as the army of yellow machines gathers together its forces and descends upon our school each day—like a swarm of bumblebees going after an intruder in their hive or an Apache tribe on the warpath—these same halls seem to diminish in length. As the first busload of teens begins to pour into the building, the walls and halls reverberate with the chatter of youth; they echo sounds of laughter and talking, gossiping and griping. The buses filled with restless teens, and the long, lonely corridors seem to go hand-in-hand as they greet us each morn for the start of another academic day.

Pushing and shoving,

Fighting the lines . . .

Obsessed

With the idea of food . . .

Impatiently waiting and then

Finally obtaining

Paper-flavored soup and

Plastic-coated pudding—

A happening of today,

But a memory of tomorrow.

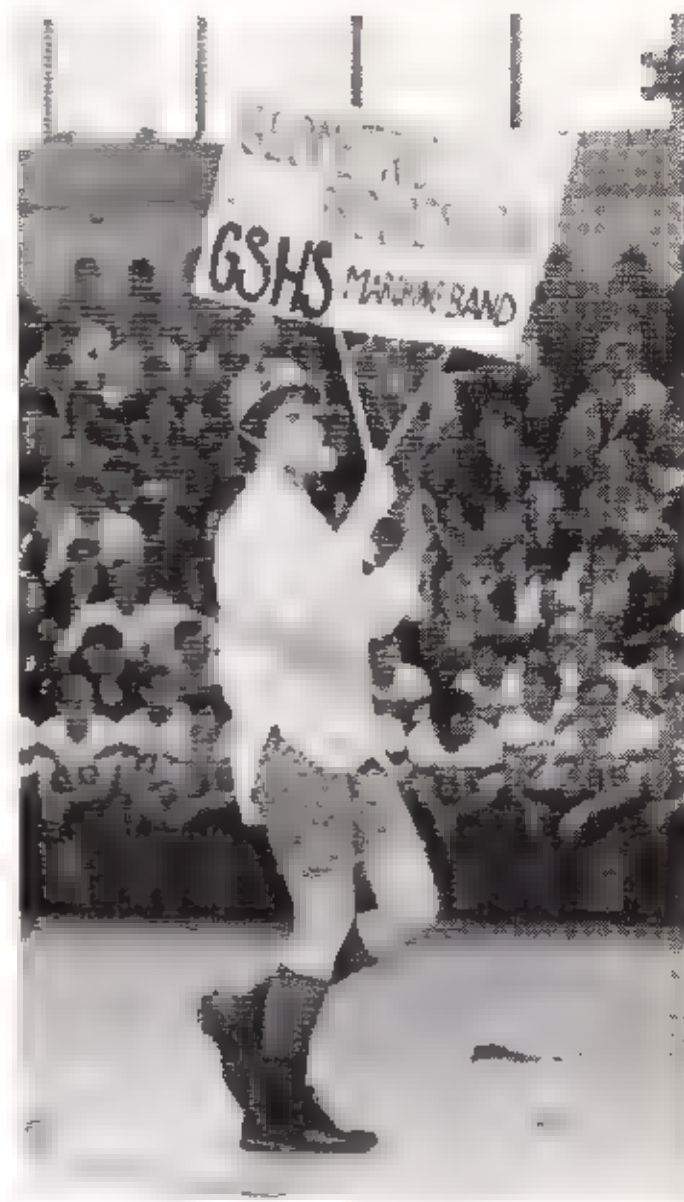

RAH!

A mass meeting of enthusiastic
And energetic minds and bodies,
The youth of Hempfield;
A get-together for
Letting off steam, for losing
Pent-up tension, and for
Boosting the spirit and morale of our team.
A skit, the alma mater, a
Pep talk and several cheers;
Hysteria, tribal chants,
Apprehension and optimism;
Hopes for victory, and fear of
Defeat . . . the pep rally.

As the clock begins its
 Descent from twelve to zero, and
 The first ball is kicked off,
 A multitude of thoughts race through the Minds of those concerned.
 To the eager and enthusiastic fan,
 Football season represents an
 Exciting and wonderful time.
 Suspense and thrill,
 Joy and apprehension,
 Disappointment and breathless glee,
 Are visible in each movement, in the eyes,
 And in the cheers.
 We, as spectators, feel carefree and gay,
 Proud and hopeful—
 But what is going through the minds of the players?
 Each is remembering the long, hard road he traveled
 To be prepared for this, the first of many Big nights.
 He thinks of the weekly drill sessions which Began in June, of the tiring exercises,
 Of the grueling week at camp.
 Each guard and quarterback, halfback and lineman,
 Is silently rehearsing the various plays
 So that when his chance comes, he will not fail.
 He possesses a stamina and desire so intense
 He is not only willing, but happy
 To remain after school each day until
 Darkness says it is time to go home.
 The first string players are crossing their fingers
 In the hope that they won't fumble or Cause the Spartans to lose.
 The second and third string players,
 The "bench warmers,"
 Are whispering a prayer, not only for the Success of the Spartans, but that maybe,
 Just maybe, they might get to play.
 Football is a great game, but it becomes
 Something even more when it is realized
 What all goes into the preseason workout—
 The time that it takes to master
 Each maneuver, each play, each game.

Little is known of the back-stage excitement,
 The tenseness, nervousness, and work which brought
 This solemn moment in a long-awaited assembly,
 A silent moment of thought for those who have Fought and died for our freedom.
 For a short while it all becomes real, and
 We appreciate our flag and what it symbolizes.

The walls of Hempfield are often
Plastered and disguised,
Concealed and screened,
Buried beneath a mass of what
Appears to be wallpaper

Designed in the new mod style.
But in reality, this is a coating,
A mirage,
A display of creative talents,
Of events to come,

LIONS
BACK IN THE ZOO!

One place in our school seems to breed havoc.
 It has a different meaning
 To all who cross its borders.
 For the juvenile offender it brings punishment,
 Detention, or perhaps suspension;
 For the lost and bewildered sophomore,
 It can soothe and bring comfort
 And help to show the right direction.
 A teacher may find that
 Long-awaited filmstrip in
 His already overstuffed, overflowing mailbox.
 This is the high school office—
 The central nervous system of our school.

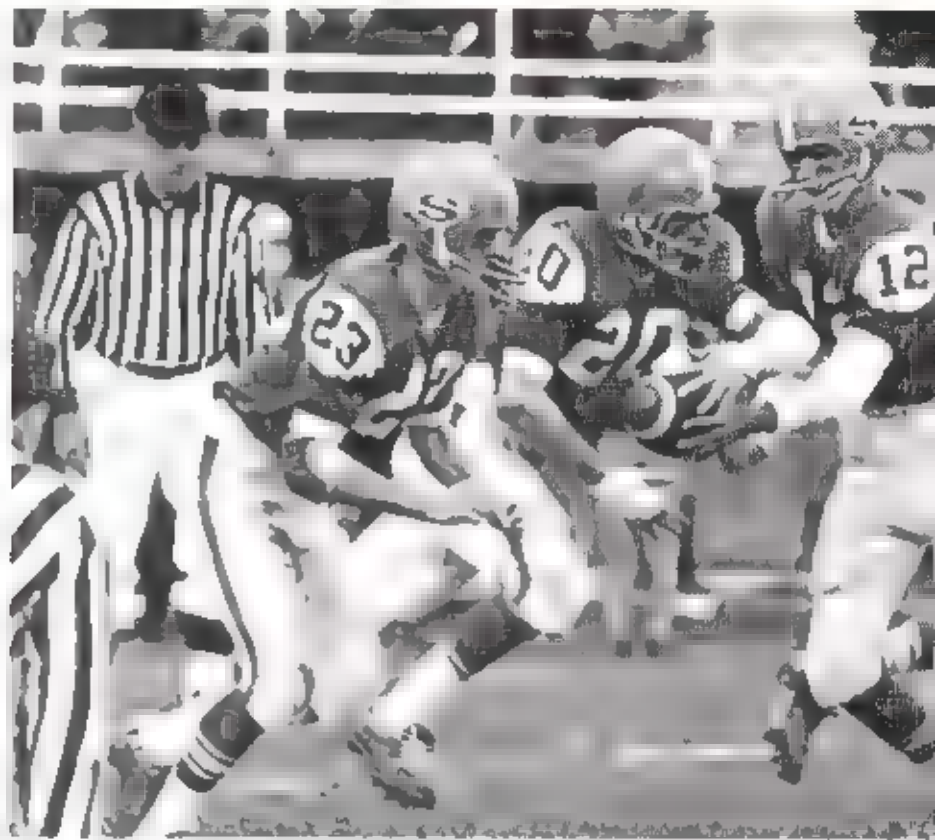

Everything coming in,
 Going out, or
 Caught in the middle
 Must pass through these boundaries—
 From keys to coffee, tapes to permanent record cards.
 And who is the head of this mighty place?
 The principal . . . who ascends his throne
 And rules his subjects.
 The office . . . it becomes something much
 Like an oversized,
 Sometimes disorganized catch-all.

They say we are living in the
 Swinging Sixties, where nothing is done
 In moderation—we eat too much,
 We drink too much, we wear dresses too short,
 We let our hair grow too long, we drive too fast,
 We rise in our profession too easily.
 We have the habit, ingrained within us,
 Of trying to do too many things, of living too fast,
 And of dying too young.
 Our motto . . . Live now, quickly, for who knows
 What the morrow will bring.
 Even in our schools, this idea is reflected by Each individual.
 Waste not, want not—that is waste not one
 Single second, one hour.
 In school we learn the basic
 Rules for keeping up with our hectic world.
 We start each morning by racing to catch
 The bus, then continue through the day by
 Hurrying to classes, running to and fro,
 Back and forth, up and down the halls.
 A mad world, a hectic society,
 A constant battle to beat Old Man Time . . .
 Are we winning . . . or losing?

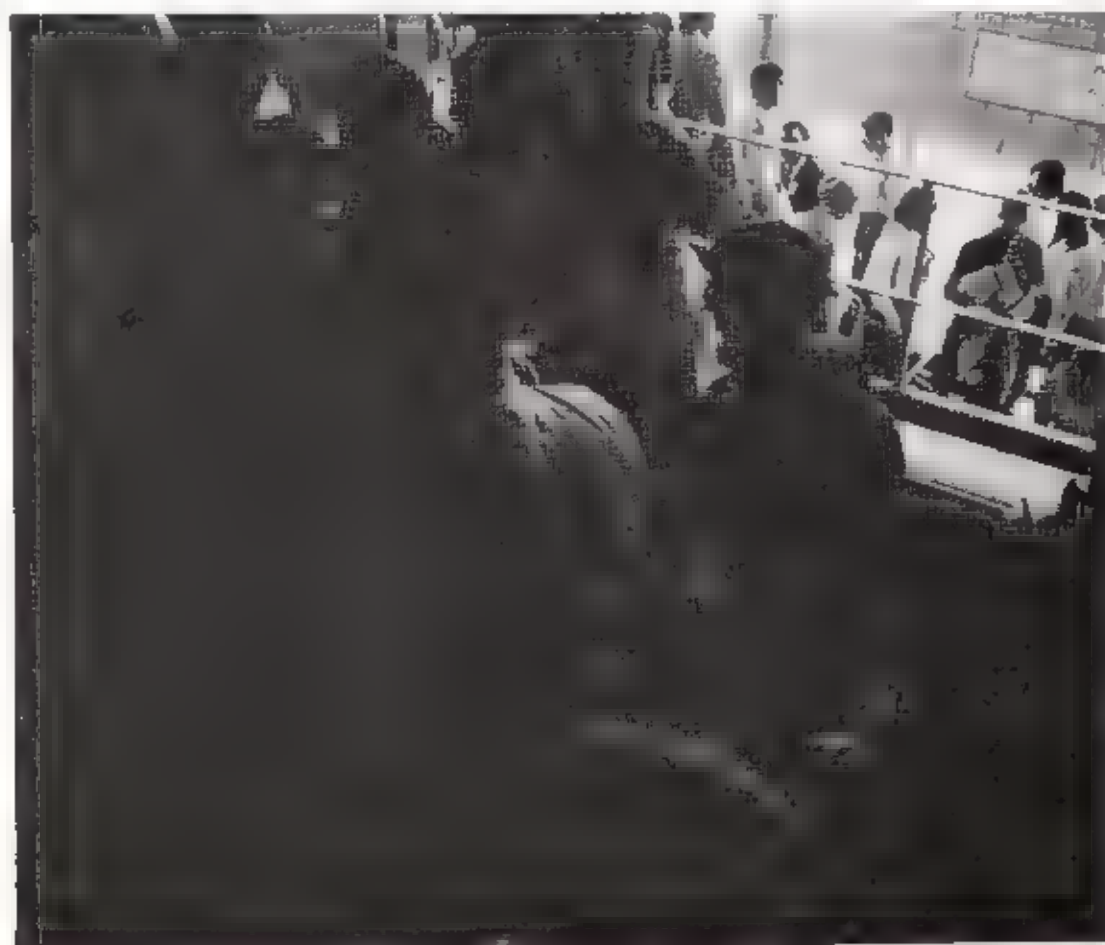

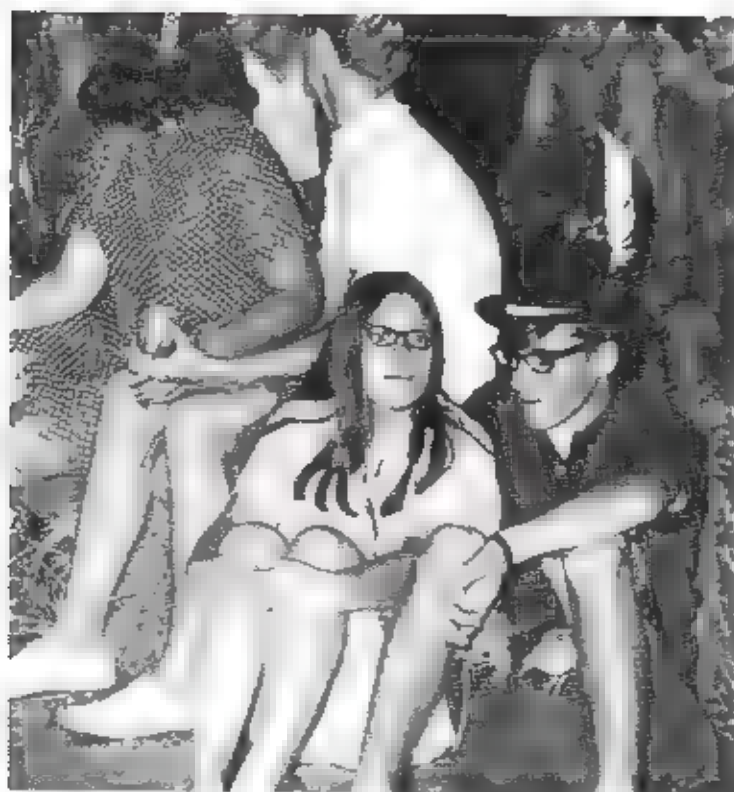

Football . . .
 Yelling and screaming,
 Pleading for touchdowns;
 Seeing each play develop
 As a major crisis—
 Jubilation in victory,
 Dejection in defeat.

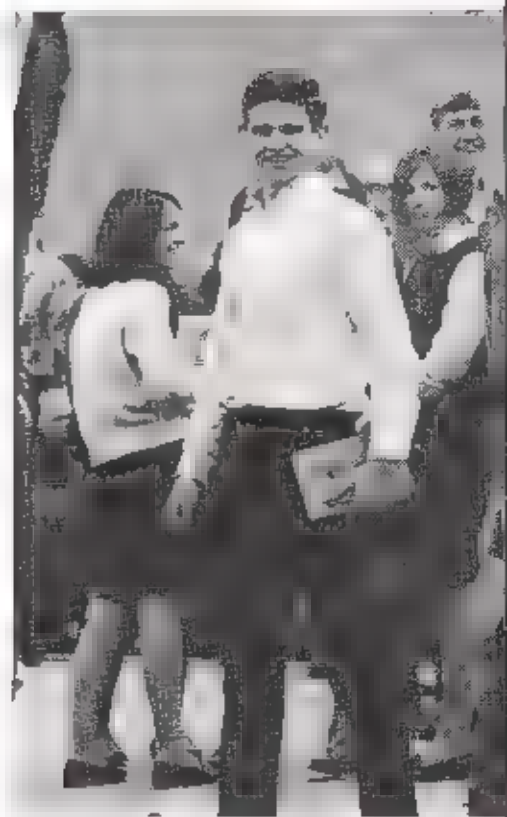

We walk alone in life, each of us
With our independent natures,
Our separate goals and desires,
Our failures and successes.
But we do have friends, and
We do belong,
Even though we often get lost
In a mass of bodies.
We become an infinitesimal part of a
Huge and overwhelming structure.
We pass in the halls,
We see our friends, and
Find ourselves repeating greetings
Almost automatically . . .
It has become a habit—
Sometimes not even knowing to whom we speak.
We become too absorbed in our own inner thoughts,
Our own troubles, our own plans.

The glow of the new harvest moon,
Hay stalks and pumpkins,
An outhouse too,
All bring a glimpse of a different world—
The world of Dogpatch, U.S.A.
A life more carefree and joyous;
A place to enjoy the smallest things of life.
The living and dancing and singing,
The frolicking and cider-sipping,
Cookie-munching, barefoot-walking
Life of a hillbilly.
A life that brings out the
Best and happiest side of everyone—
Even the biggest grouch of the year!
That funny, squeamish feeling that comes with
Dancing over the remains of a pumpkin;
The peace of relaxing in a mound of hay,
That exhilarating joy of saying “I do” in
Pappy Yokem’s slap-happy, down-to-earth, but Sentimental marriage ceremony
All contribute to the memory, the thought,
Of a left-over night,
A souvenir pumpkin, of patches and rags,
Faded and worn-out clothes;
The thought of an evening to remember—
The Sadie Hawkins Dance.

ALTHOUGH WE ENJOY BEING ONE OF THE CROWD . . .

Almost always surrounded by people—
Our friends, mere acquaintances,
Teachers, fellow workers—
We often become a part of
The entire body,
The new being of everyone,
Combined into a crowd of faces,
Of personalities, of minds.
We need this association, this being together,
To awaken our senses.
We learn to live with others,
We learn how to achieve things in the world,
And we learn the do's and don'ts of Having fun and living in this age.

. . . WE NEED TIME ALONE, TO BE OURSELVES.

This is the time of day when we can

Think and feel and plan,

When we can enjoy the solitude
and

Serenity of our own nature.

We need not be lonely,

But just alone—

At peace with our being,

With our hopes and humiliations,

To form those decisions,

To conceive our desires,

And to think over the day.

We are alone when we

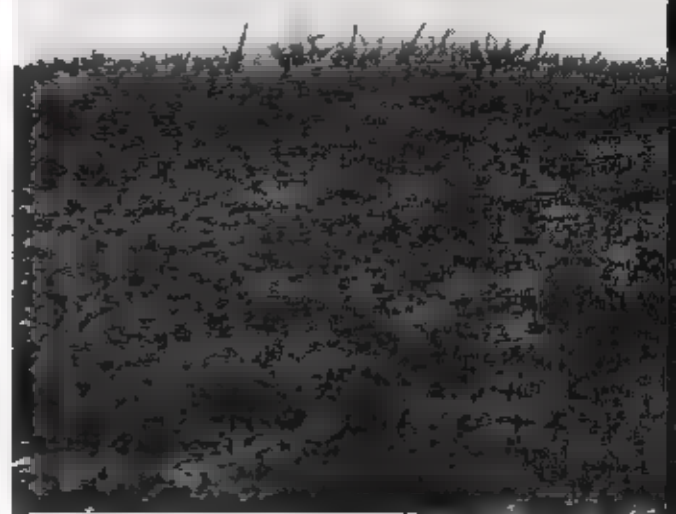

Feel the wonder of nature,

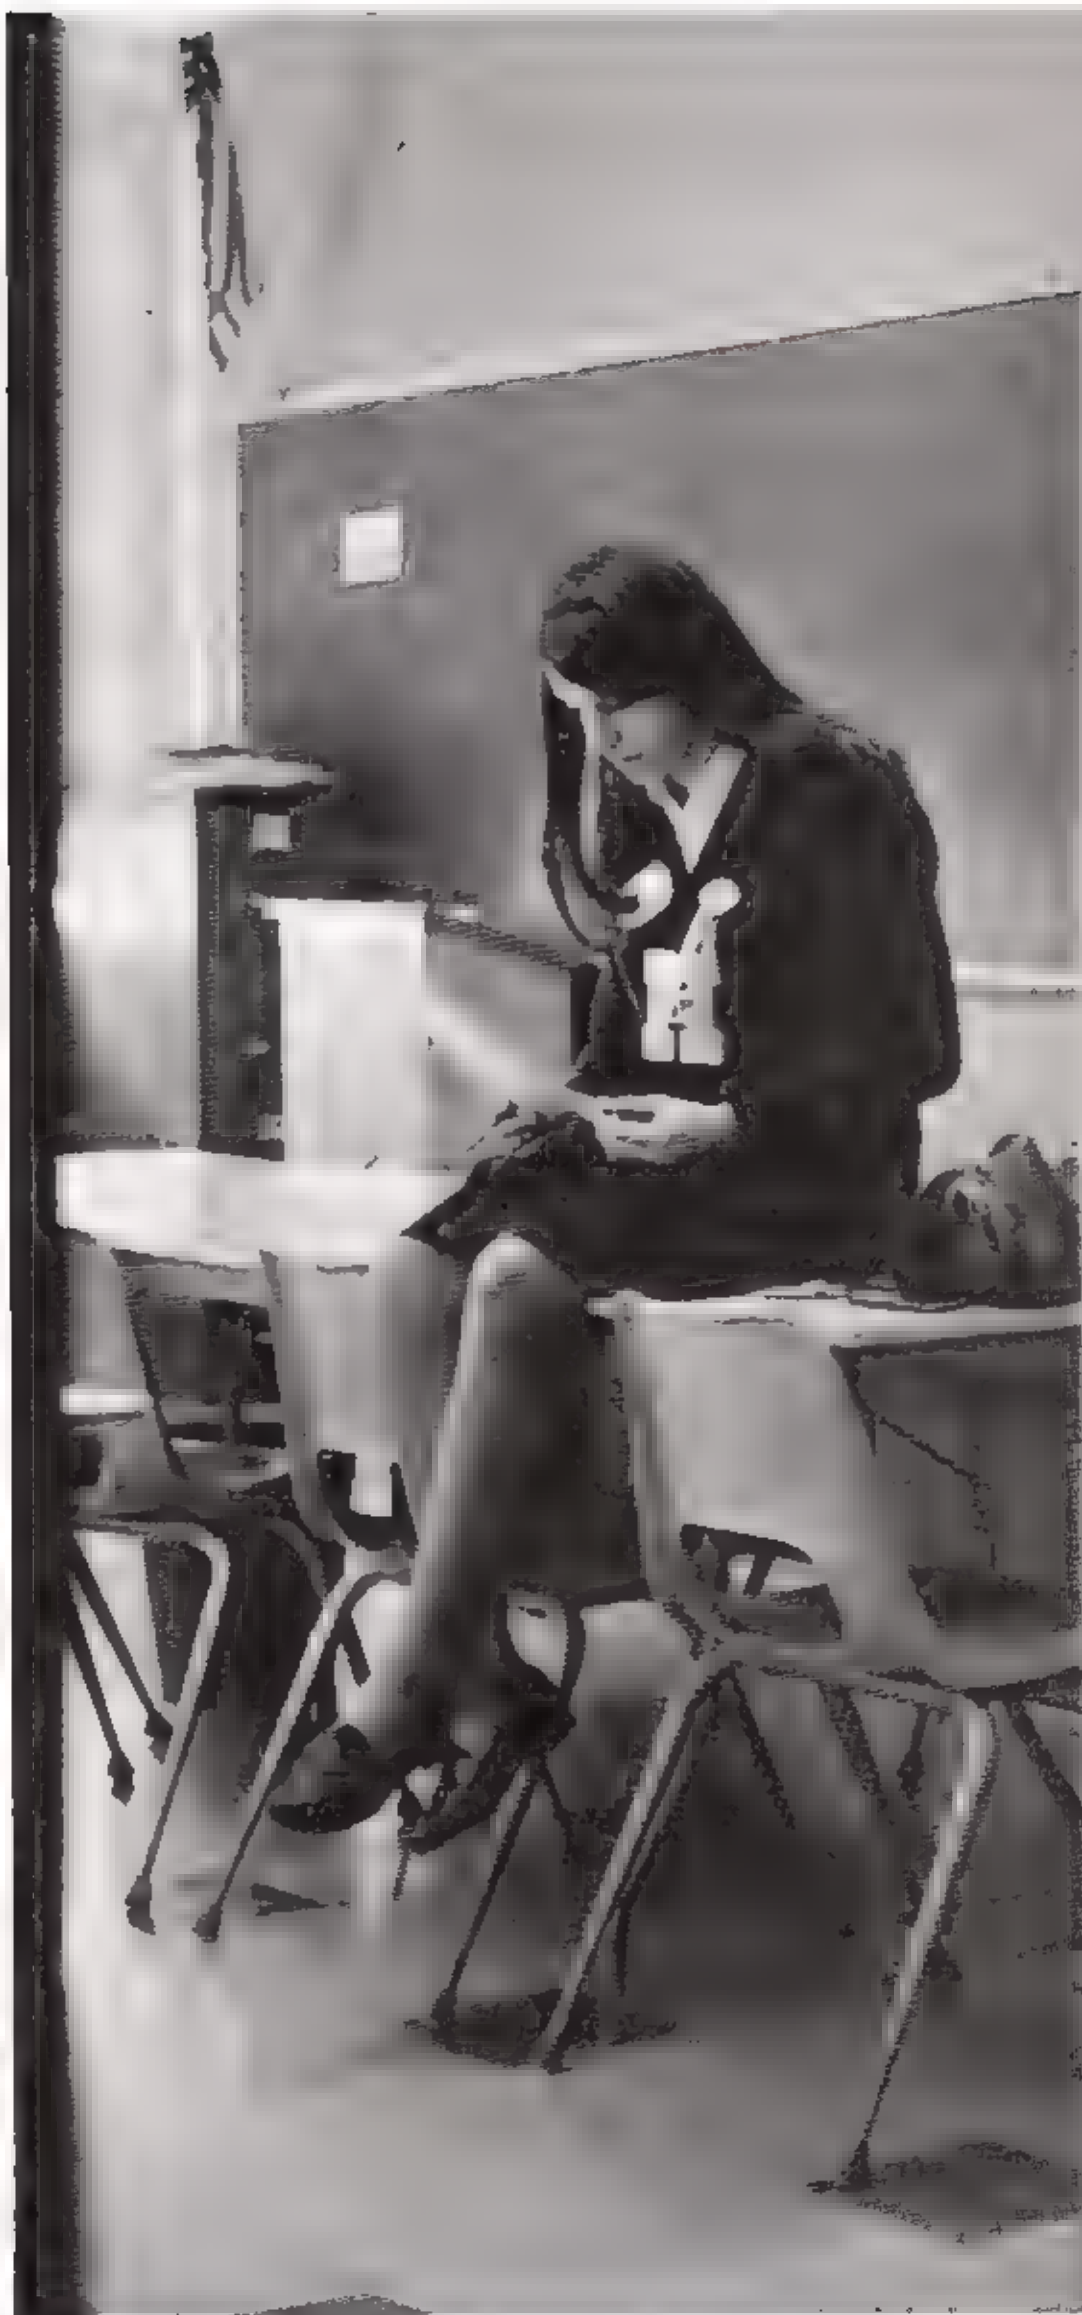

The miracle of our world;

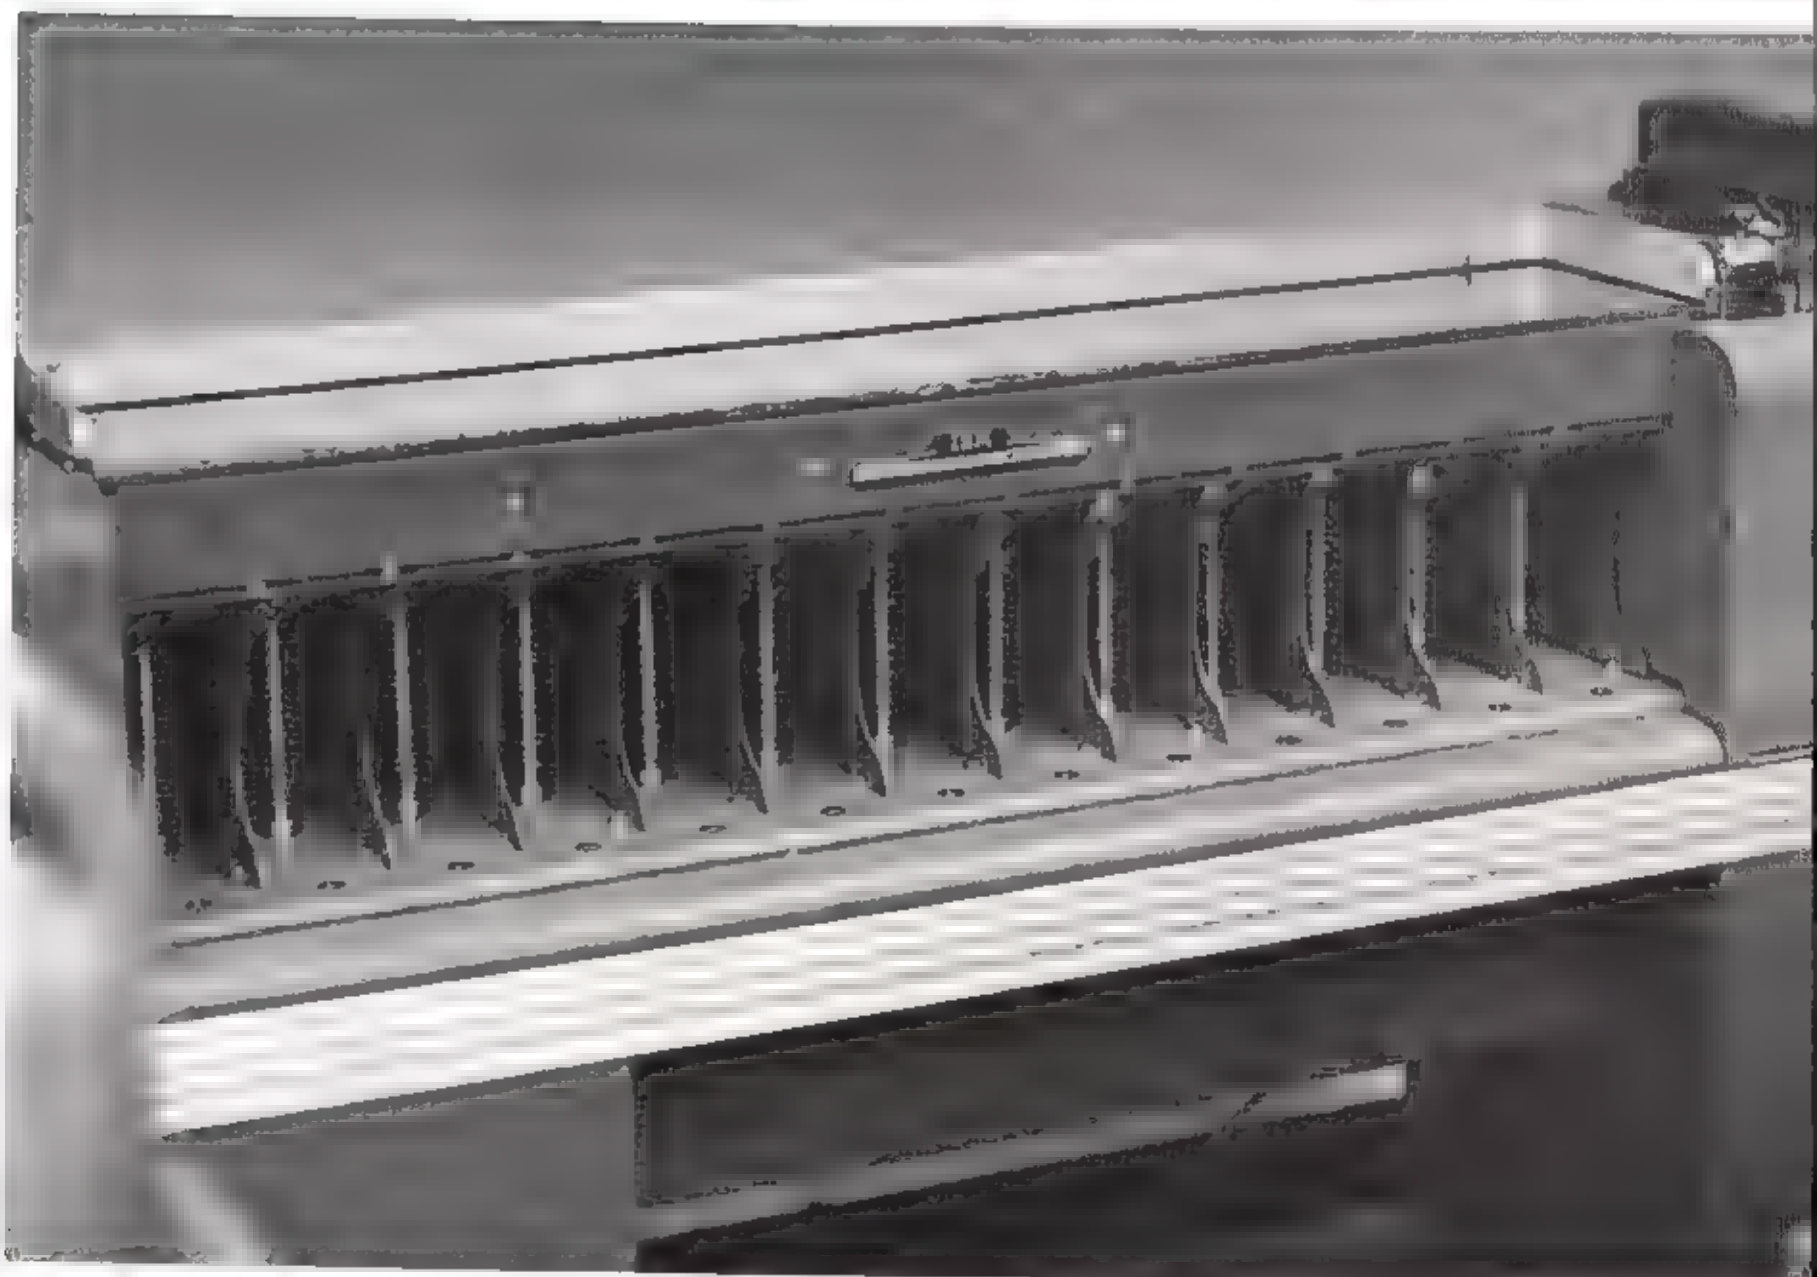

We are alone when we make plans

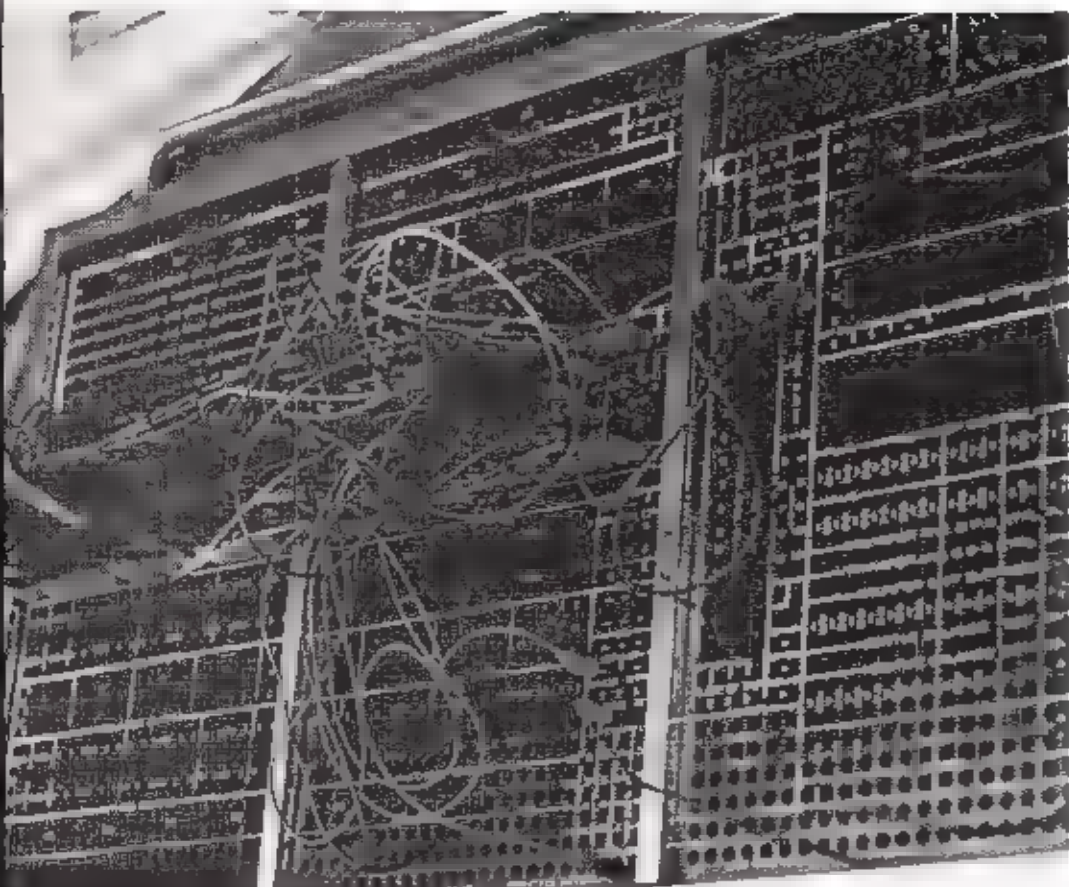

That stretch into our future,

Like the horizon stretches to the sky.

Our guide,
 Our boss,
 Our hands, our minds,
 Transformed into horsepower . . .
 Computers are taking over . . .
 They have even invaded our school.
 They plan our schedules,
 They give us our grades,
 They work hard and consistently,
 All day long.
 They are becoming the rulers,
 The monarchs, the kings,
 The power of our society;
 And out of jealousy perhaps, or that
 Old-fashioned love of do-it-yourself,
 We have often wished they would
 Blow a fuse, or become unplugged,
 Or cross some wires;
 Instead, they just keep on running,
 And working, and humming their way through
 Our life,
 Becoming an obsessed bulk of
 Steel and wires,
 Controlled electricity and plugs,
 But still . . . just a machine.

A confusing, fascinating, sometimes hectic world,
 Putting us face-to-face with decisions constantly,
 Some as unimportant as a
 Single daisy growing in a field,
 Or as monumental as starting an atomic war.
 The need for making a choice,
 A decision, is crying for attention.
 We must be very careful and very exacting,
 We must be sure to get the best lunch—
 The coldest milkshake, the hottest hamburger—
 We must be wise and also follow our heart when Choosing our friends
 To be certain we find someone
 Who will be a true friend and not
 Just a fly-by-night acquaintance;
 We must create, and enjoy the gratification
 That comes with making the right decision of what
 We want to create, and how to spend our leisure;
 We must be thoughtful and considerate of others,
 And enjoy the glow from within,
 Which comes from helping someone else;
 We must be alert and quick
 In order to make the decision
 Which just might win the game.
 We enjoy a varied life,
 A free life, and we must make the right decision
 So we may keep our life the way it is—
 Free and wonderful.

A maze of action,
An entanglement of bodies,
Spirits,
Minds,

Of defenses, blocks, and tackles;

A blur of feeling, of Anxiety and
Irrepressible glee;

A football game is a combination
Of glaring helmets crashing together,

Of brightly colored sweaters,

Of the discordant melody of:

Horns and drums,

Of excess energies

Let loose in yells and screams,

Of piercing cheers of

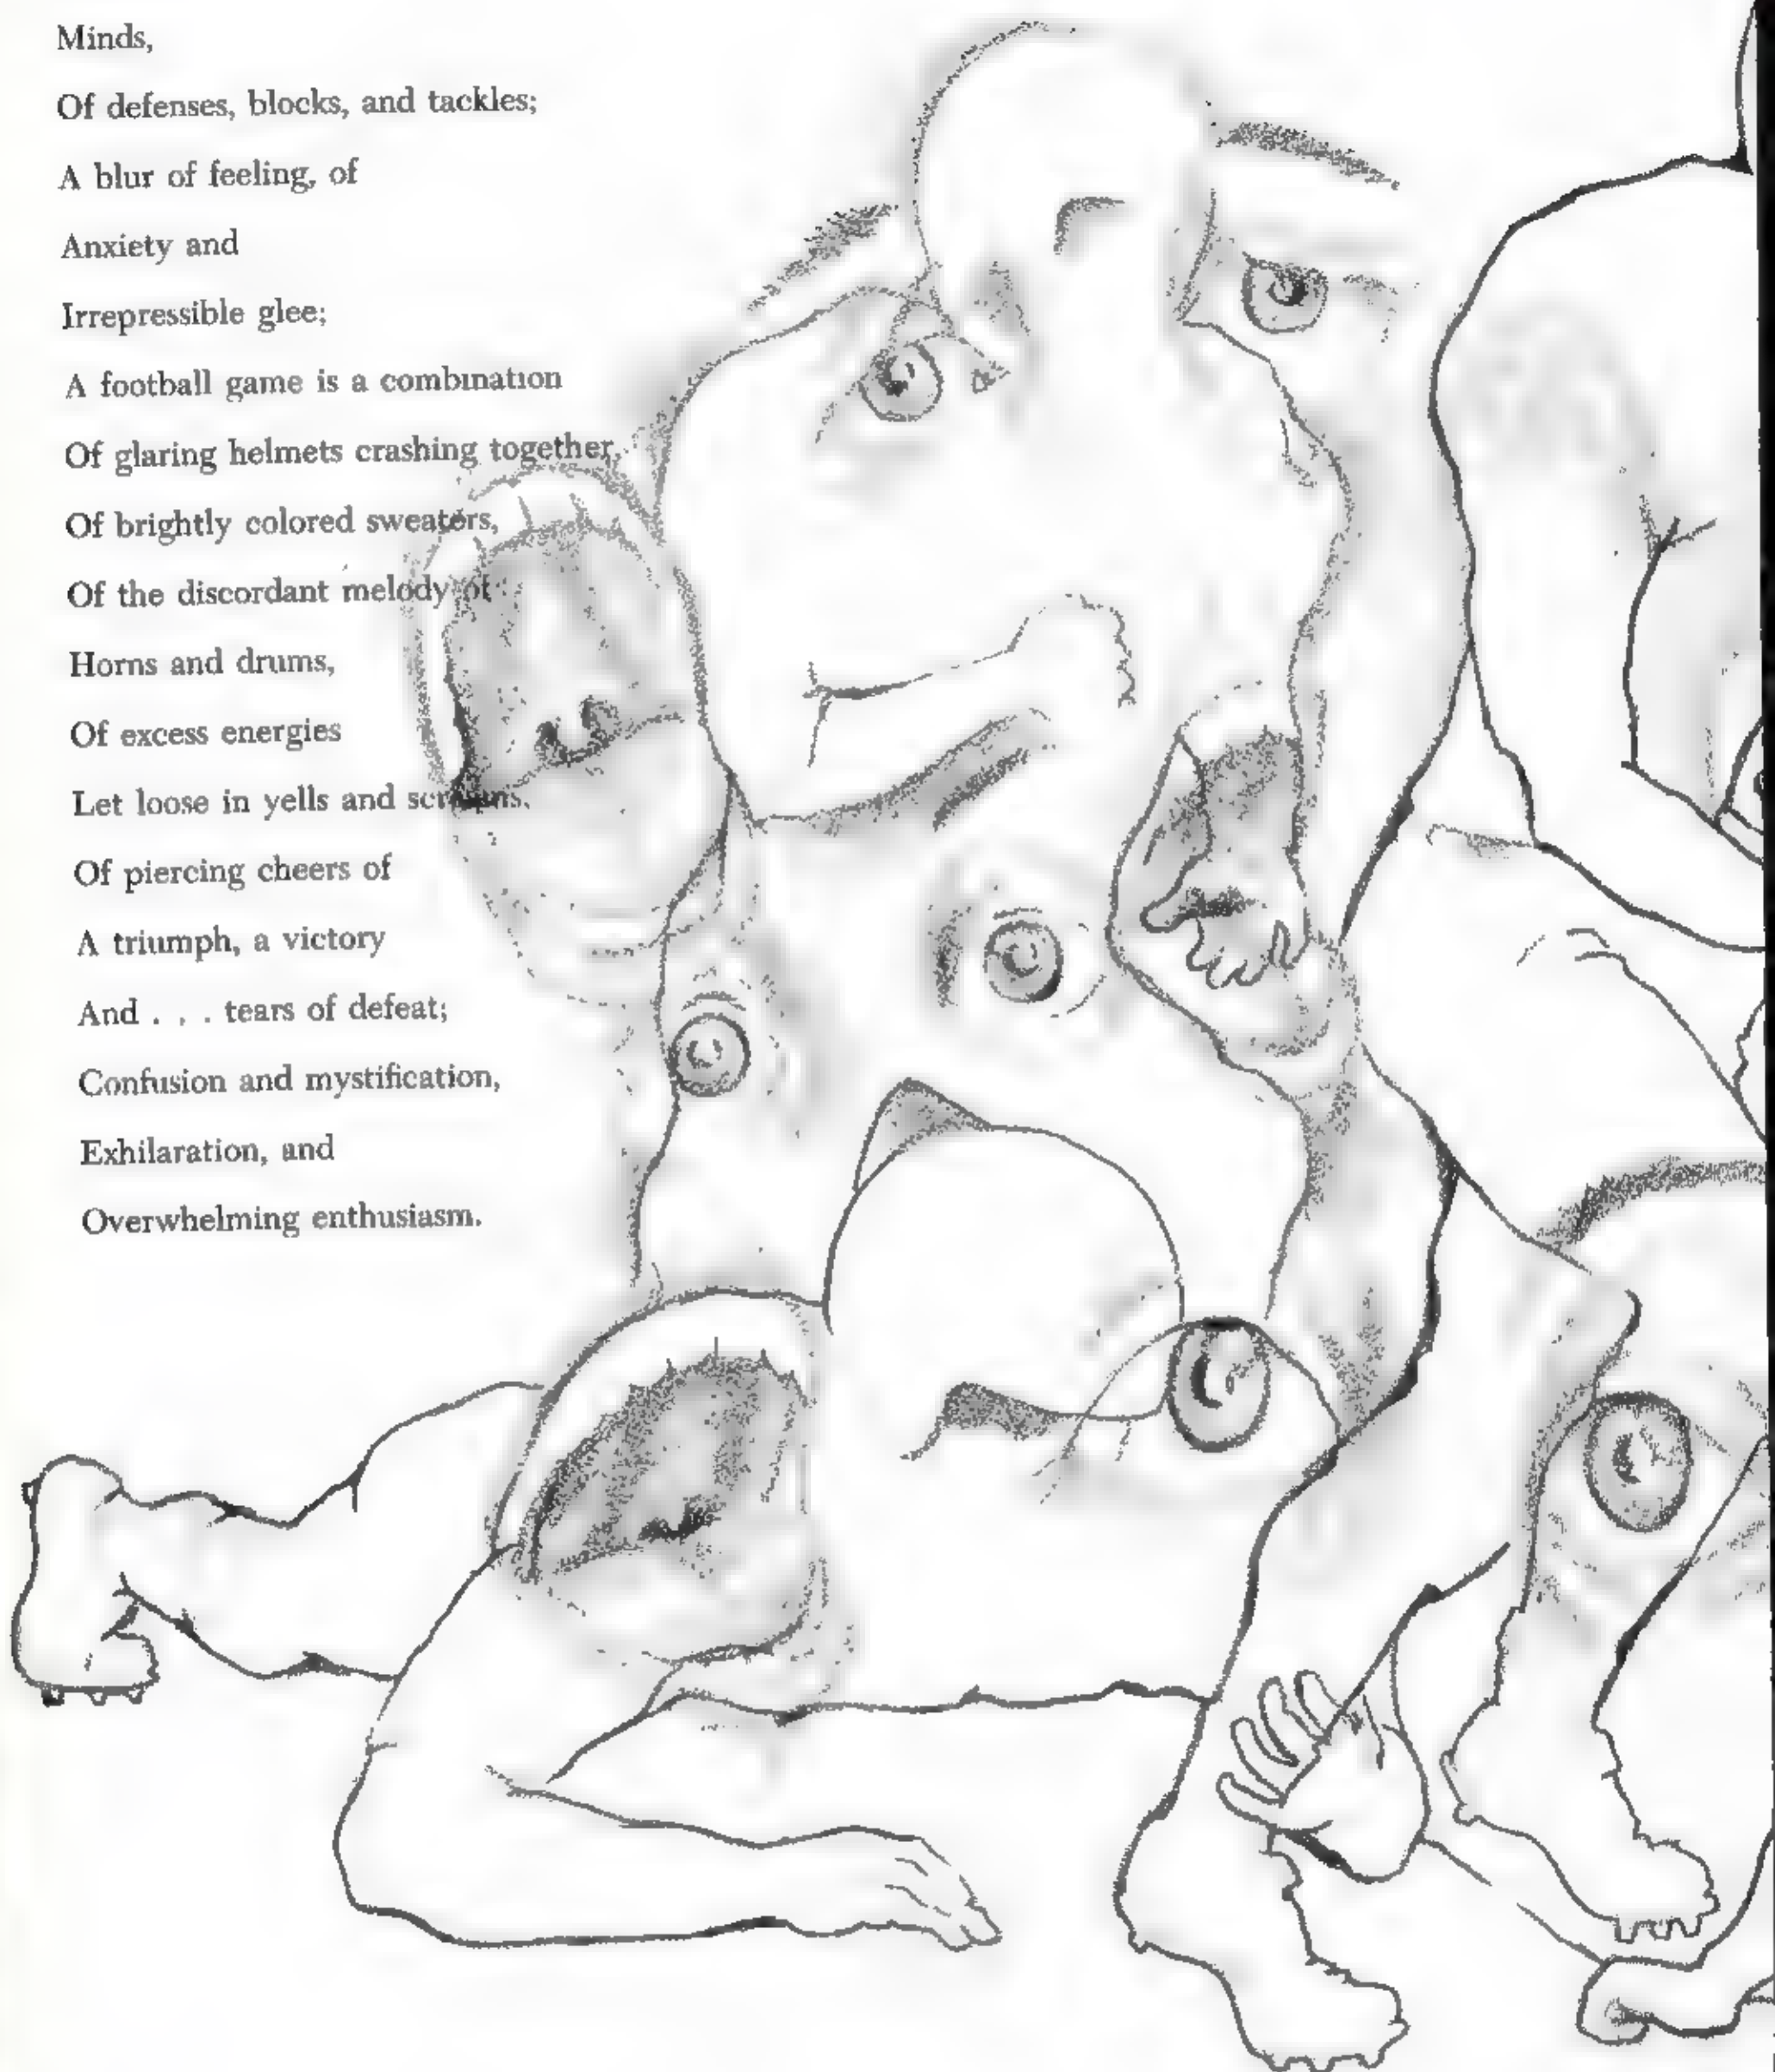

A triumph, a victory

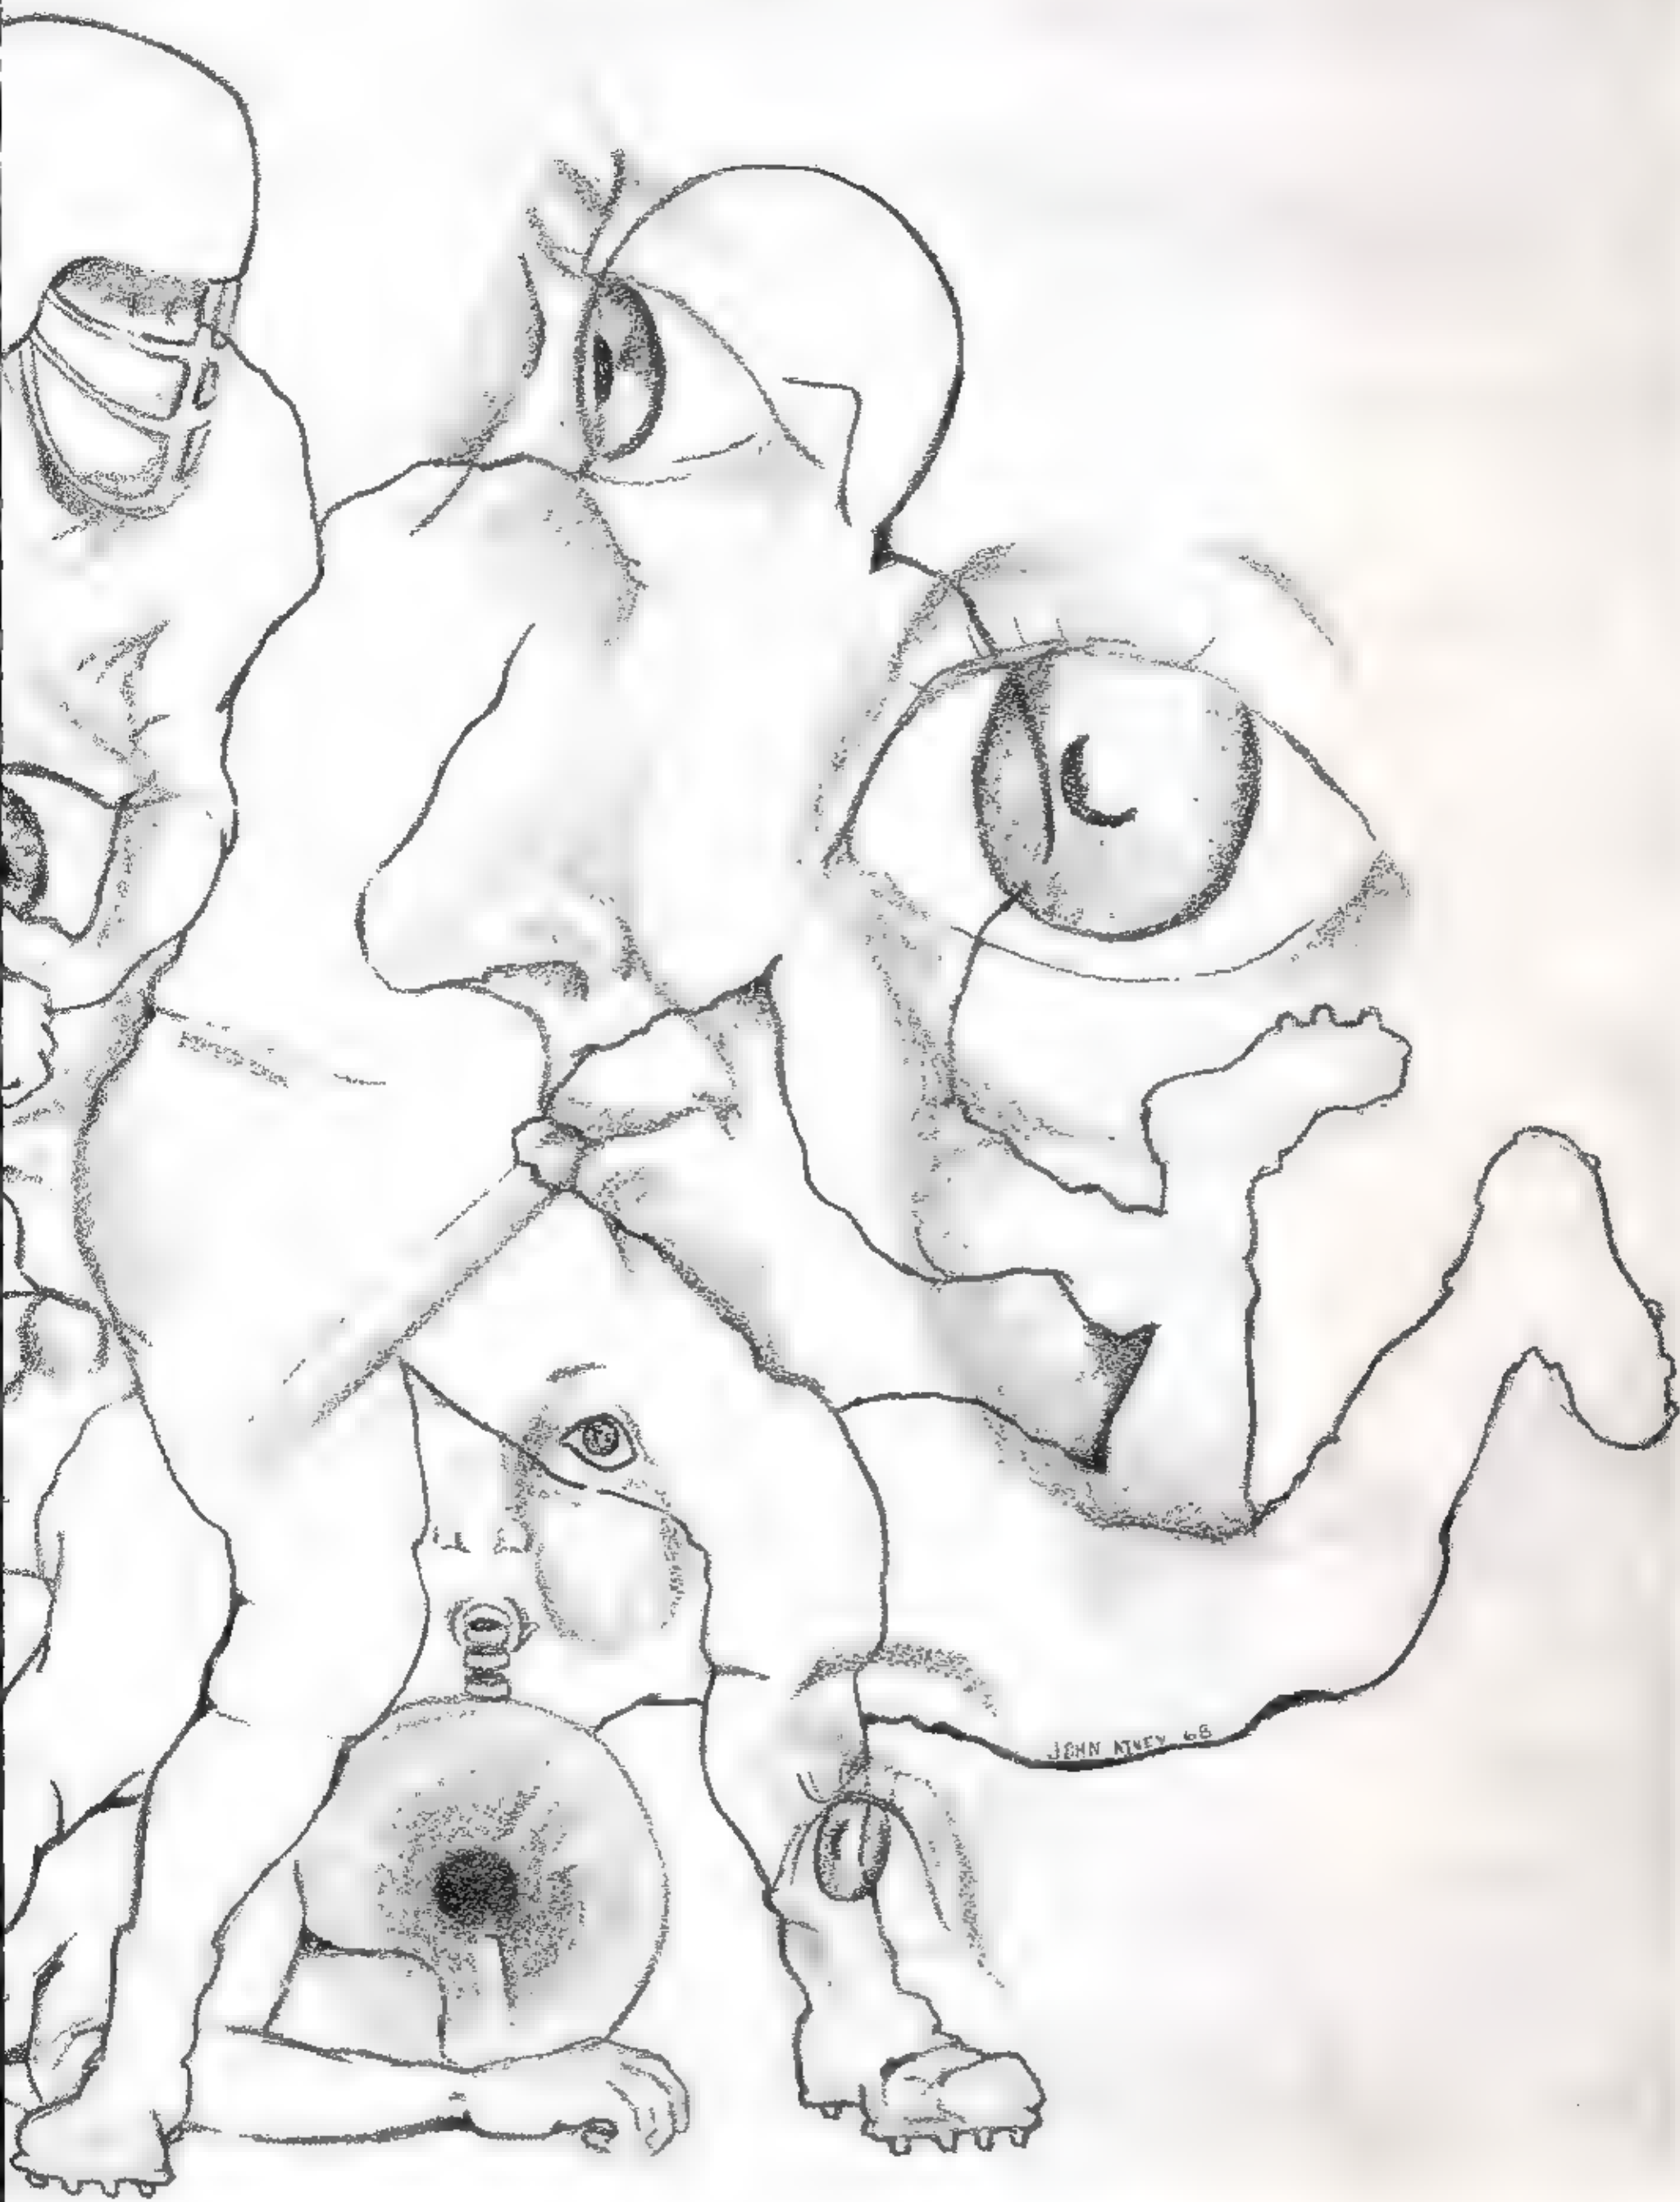

And . . . tears of defeat;

Confusion and mystification,

Exhilaration, and

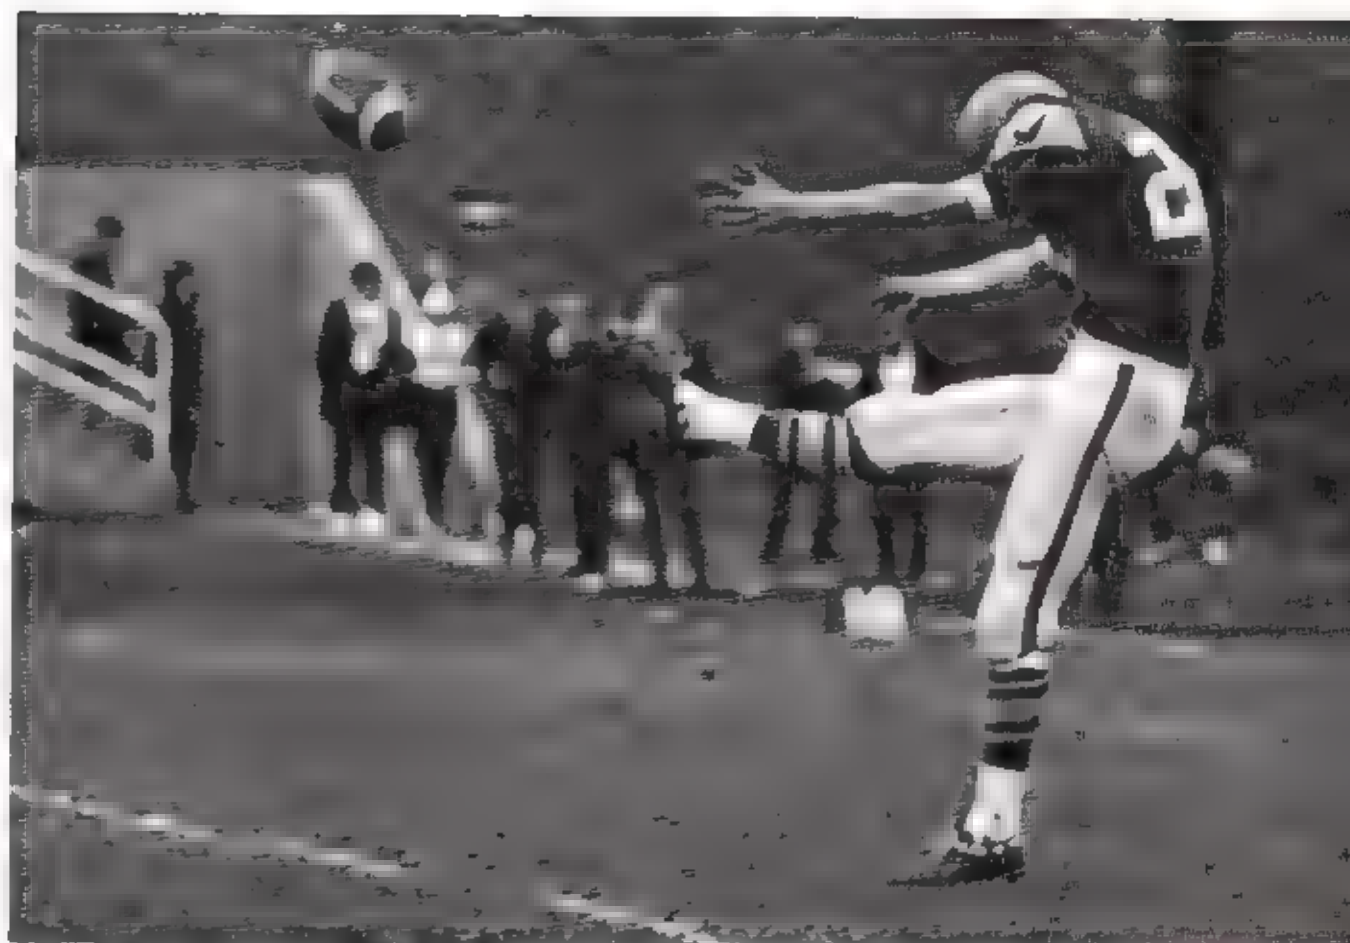

Overwhelming enthusiasm.

Spartans finish strong with consecutive victories over Wilkinsburg, Norwin

Greensburg and Mount Pleasant for a final season record of five wins, three losses and one tie.

School . . . a place for teaching . . .

And learning . . .

We learn not only the Three Rs

But also the rules of etiquette,

The principles of atomic structure,

The amount of sugar for a special cake,

The proper method of using a jigsaw,

The graceful, co-ordinated manner

Of modern dance and . . . the Rules of proper grooming.

School is more than a place

To learn to read and write,

To add and subtract;

Today it is a place where

Personalities have a chance

To grow and blossom;

It is a place in which the

Adults of tomorrow learn

How to cope with the Problems of everyday life.

School instills within us

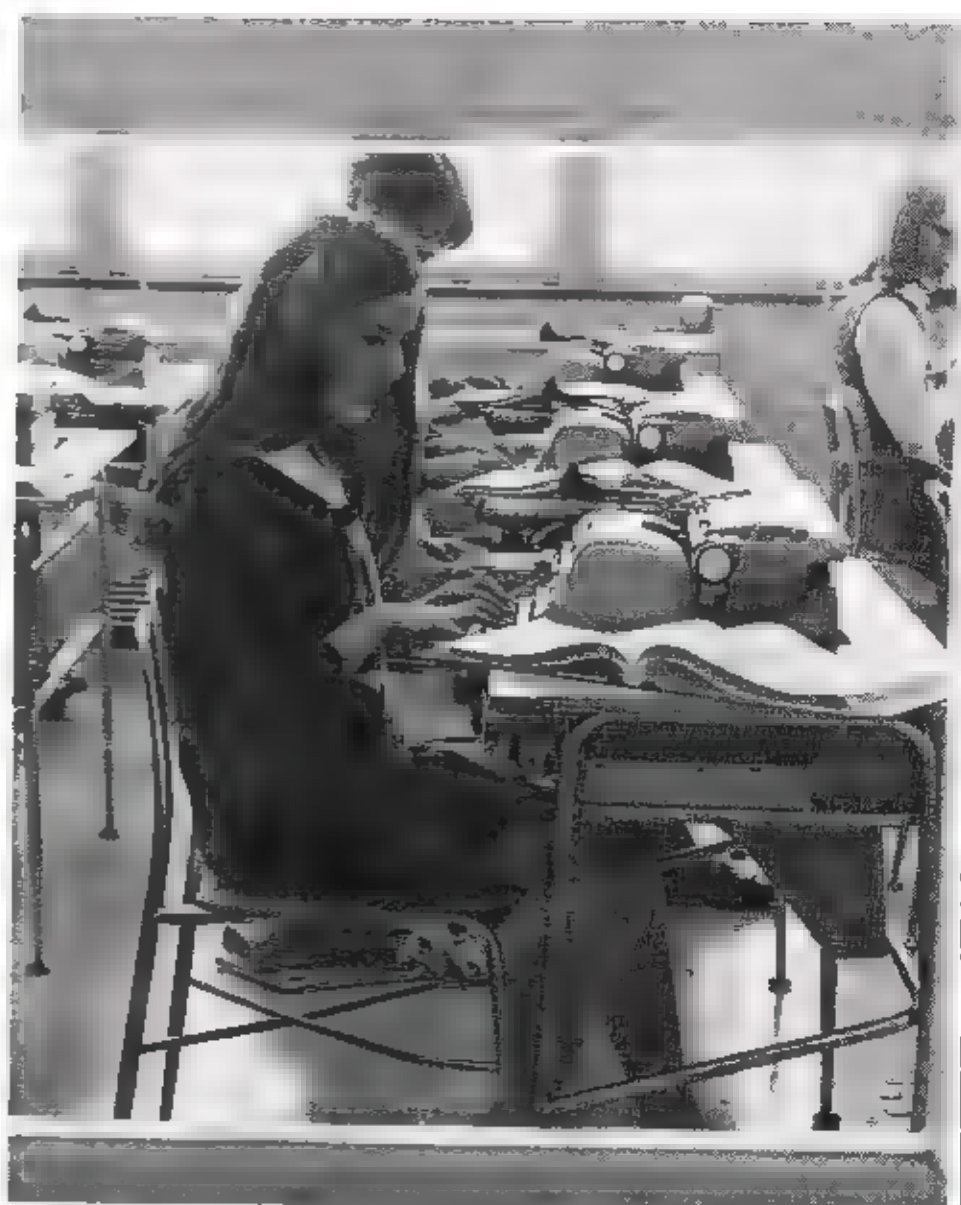

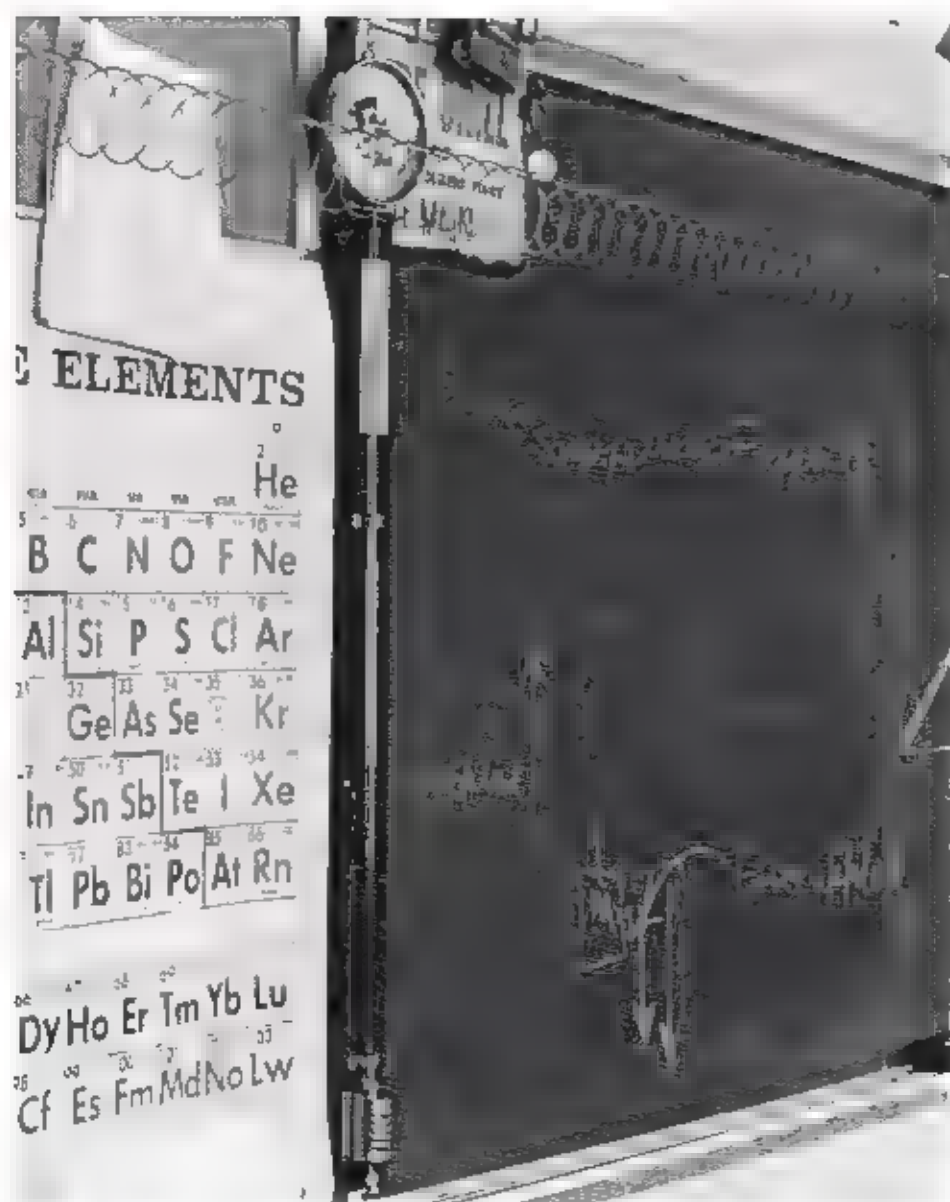

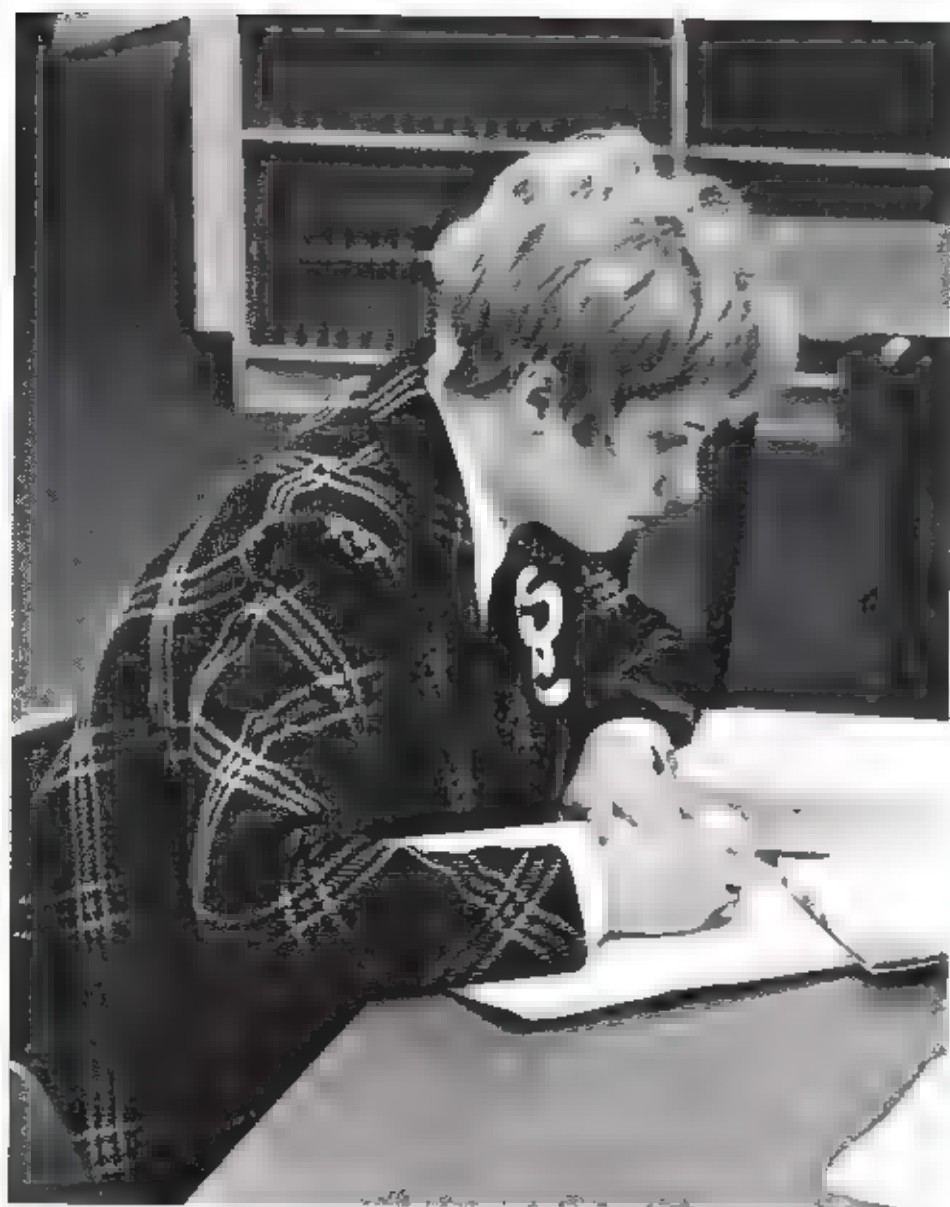

The rewards to be derived

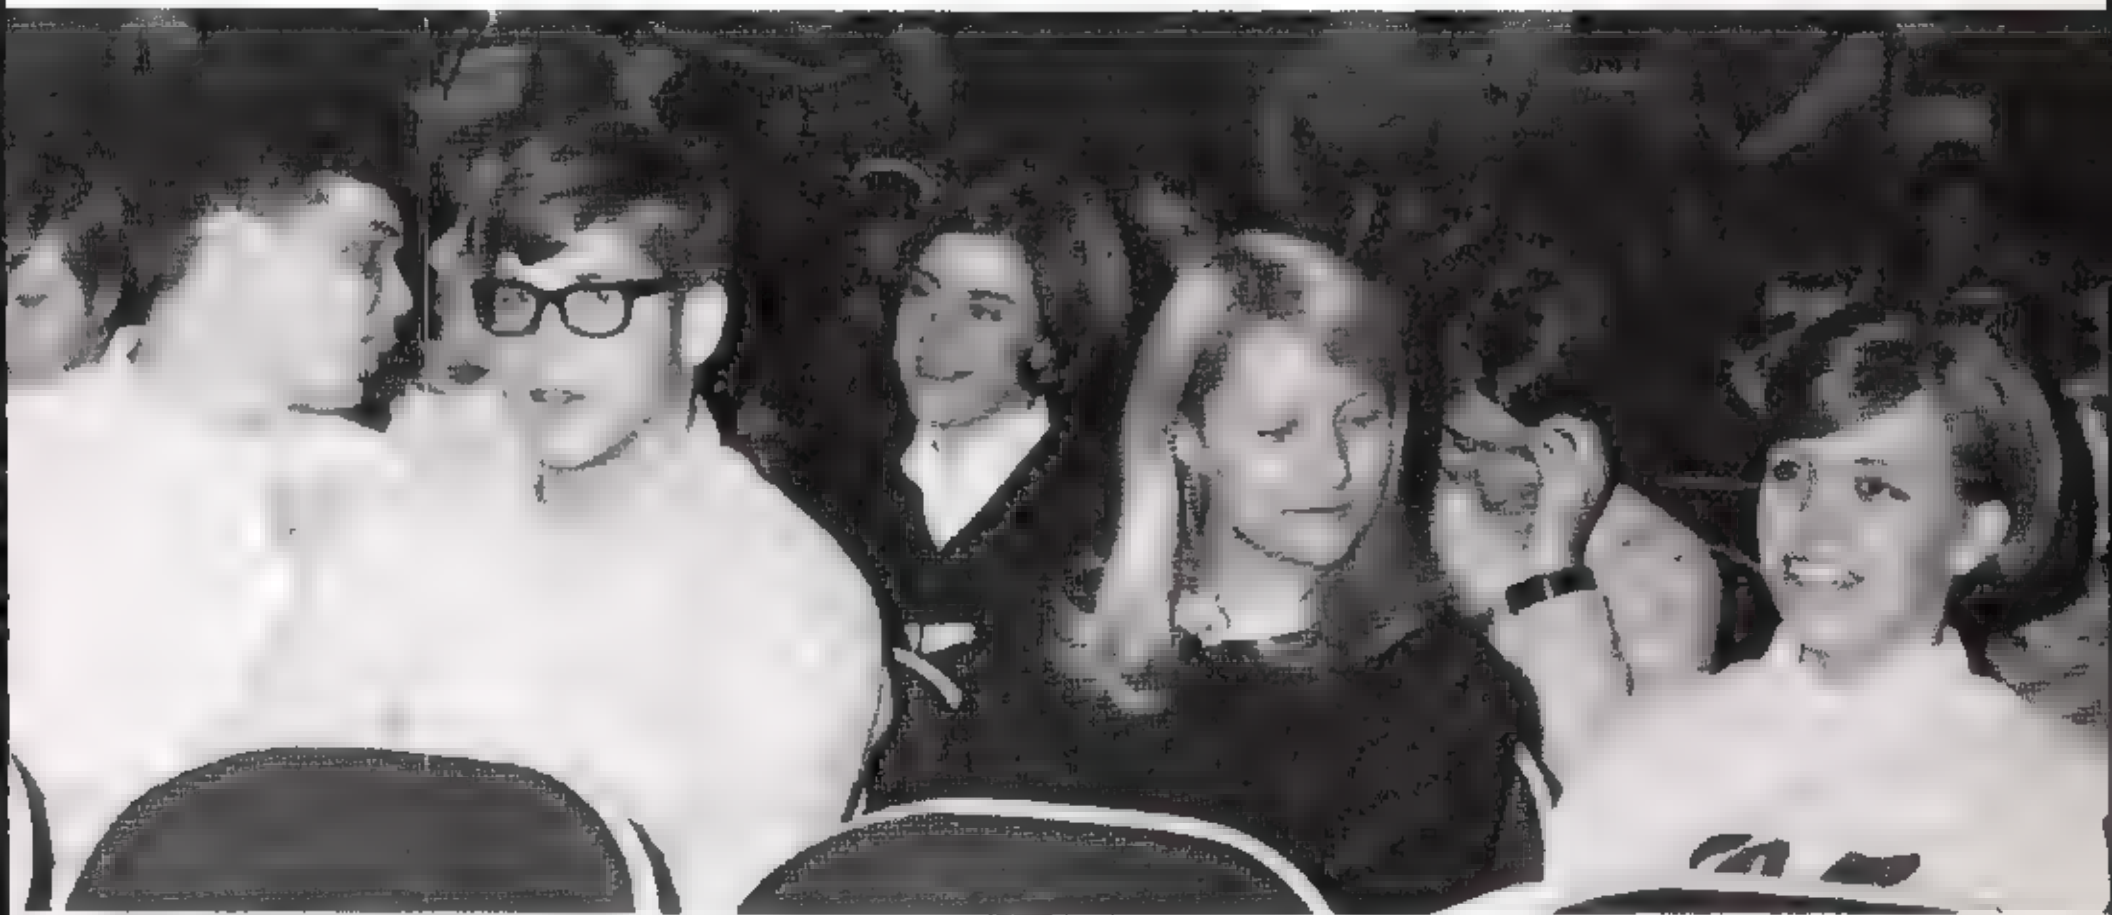

From getting a solid education

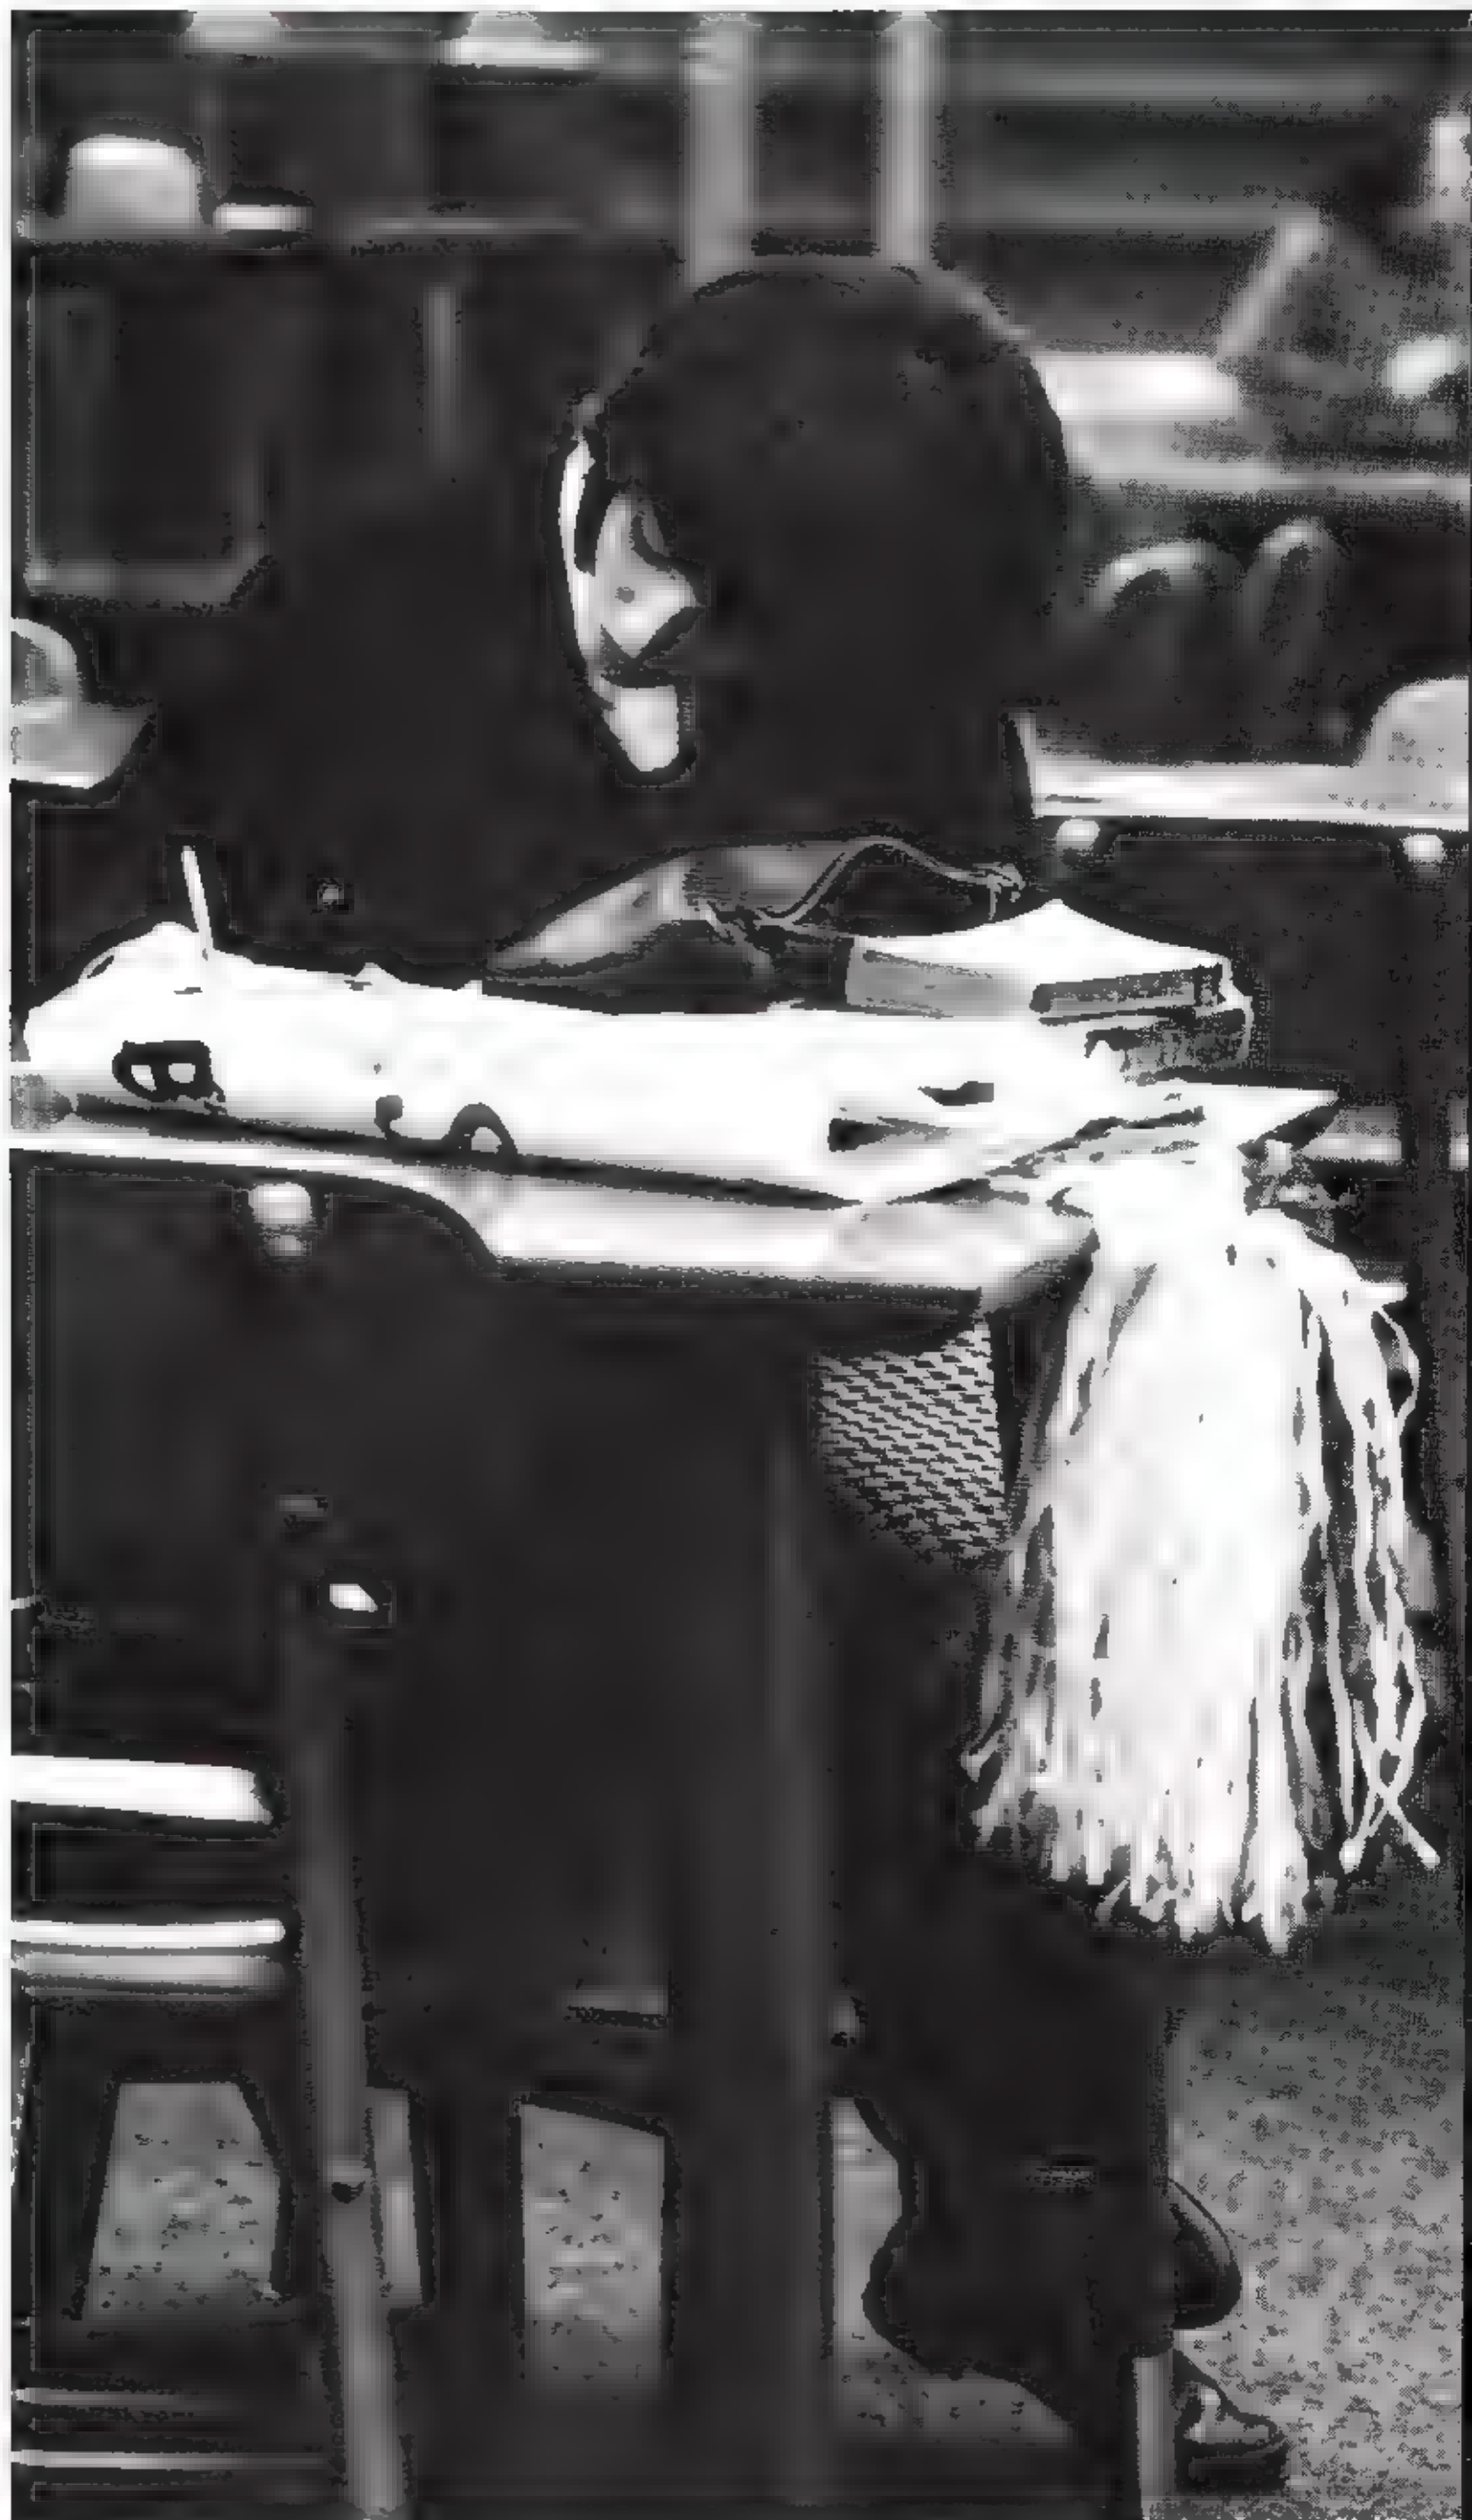

And living a good life

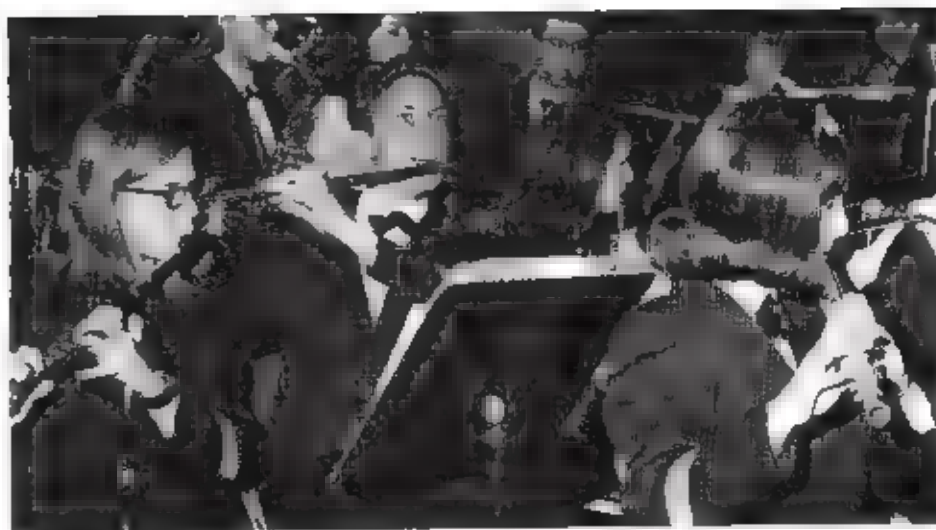

It is designed to be a place of
Cultural achievement,
A haven where you can go to think,
To feel,
To browse among the old classics,
The new novels and the science fictions.
Here you can decline into obscurity,
And enjoy that one period of
Peaceful aloneness,
When your thoughts are yours.

The library is our last resort after the
Crowded crampedness of our halls.
But you can never escape reality—
The drawback is always there, and here
It is the eye of the library.
It sees everything.
It records your every movement.
It is a constant reminder to you:
Don't talk, don't chew gum, don't just browse,
For the eye is there—watching . . .

From a jumbled mess of symbols
 Strewed around on paper,
 A rare experience is provided.
 These symbols represent
 Notes and sounds
 Which, when combined at just
 The right instant,
 And held for exactly the
 Right length of time,
 Produce the sounds from
 Brass and wood which
 Are pleasing to listen to,
 That excite and soothe us . . .
 Arousing our patriotism and spirit.
 But when this skill,
 This inborn talent, which has
 To be cultivated, is not perfect,
 These symbols become part of
 A mixed-up, messed-up,
 Headache-producing glob of Discordant sounds.
 Hempfield's concerts are Carefully planned, tirelessly
 Rehearsed, and result in a
 Showing of skill and diligence,
 Harmony and rhythm,
 Hard work . . . and most of all
 Complete enjoyment.

Love

An indescribable feeling that comes to everyone

At least once in his lifetime

A mere word which symbolizes

A feeling, an emotion

A degree of affection

Love can be found anywhere

In a quiet classroom

In a walk between classes

In a dance, slow and soft

In a walk after school

In a look, a touch, a sigh

Love

This indefinable emotion

Unidentifiable in its mysterious way

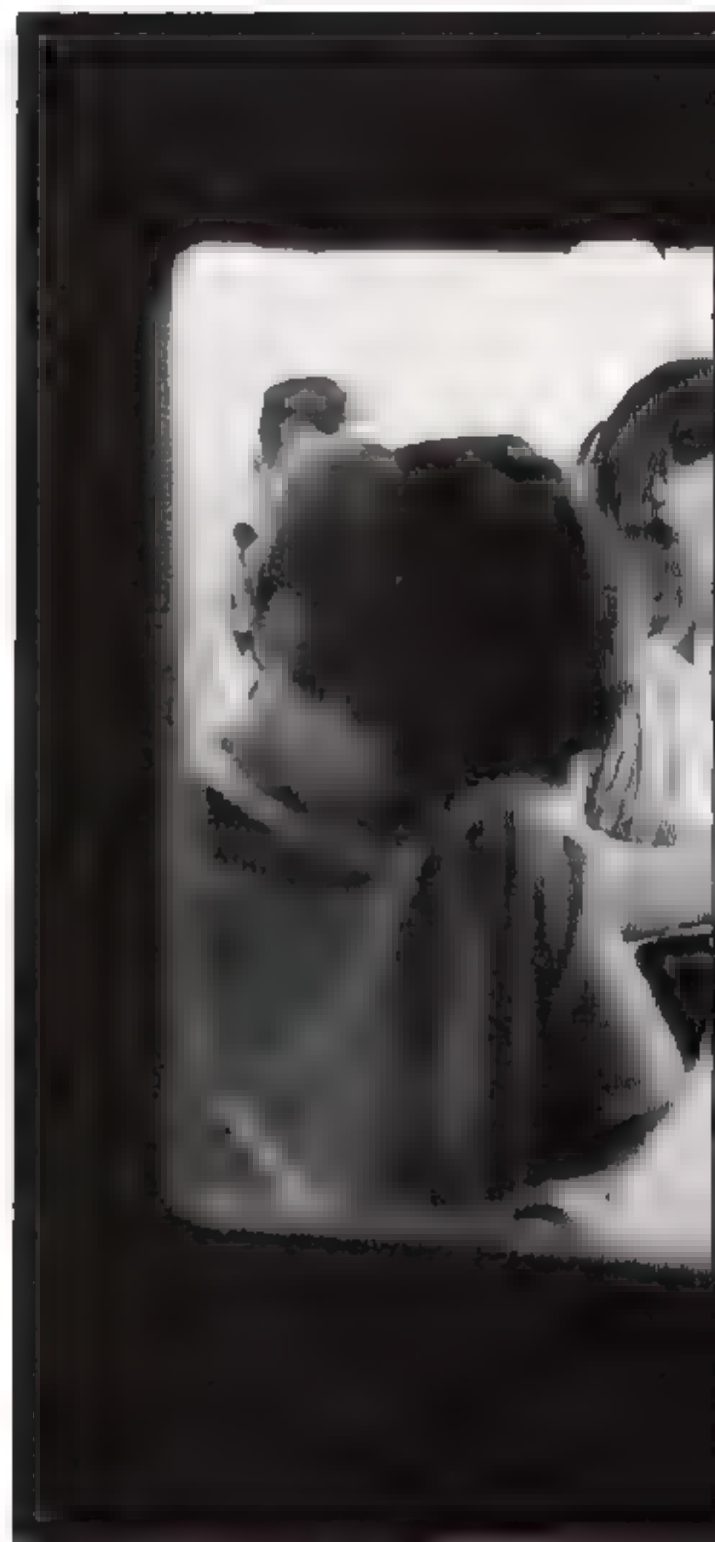

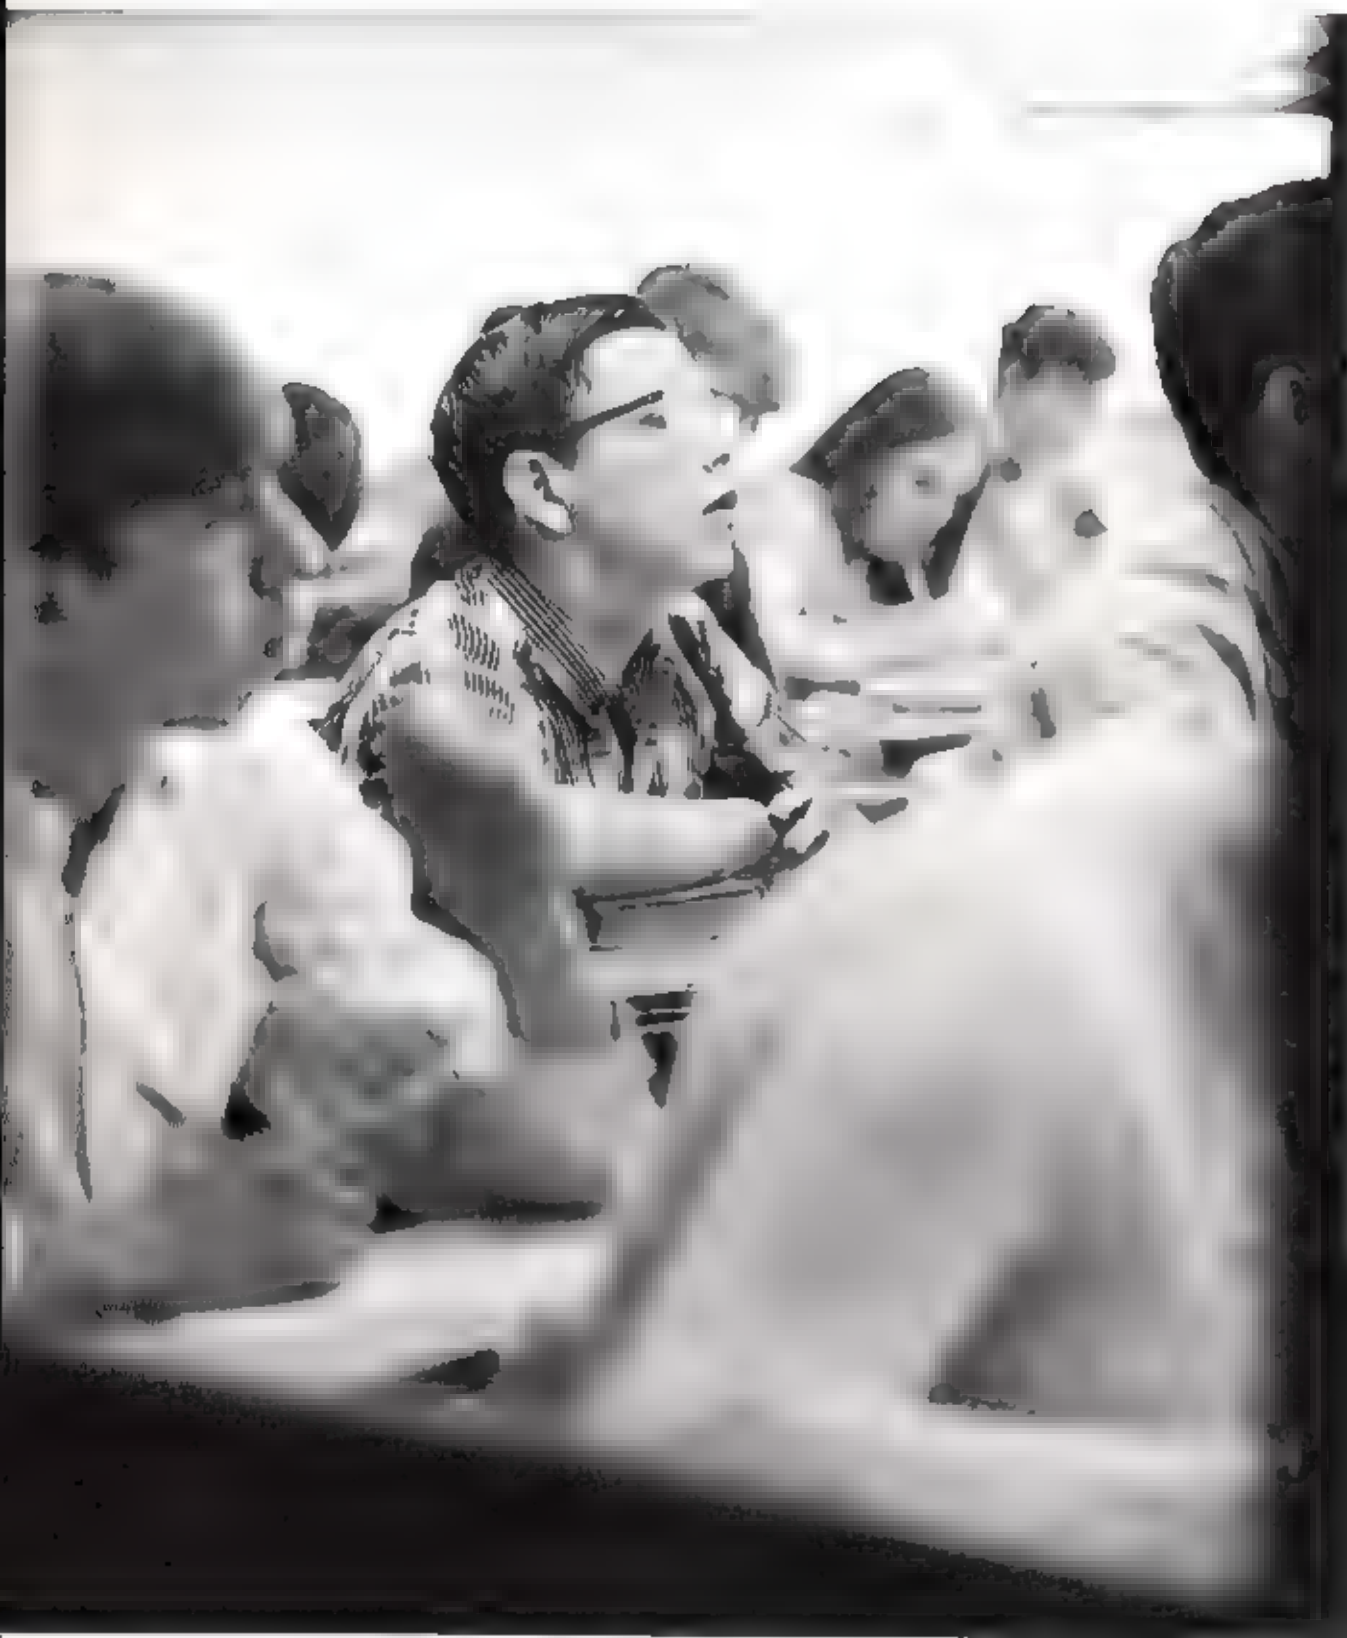

Is very evident in high school

Only a teenager can love with such depth

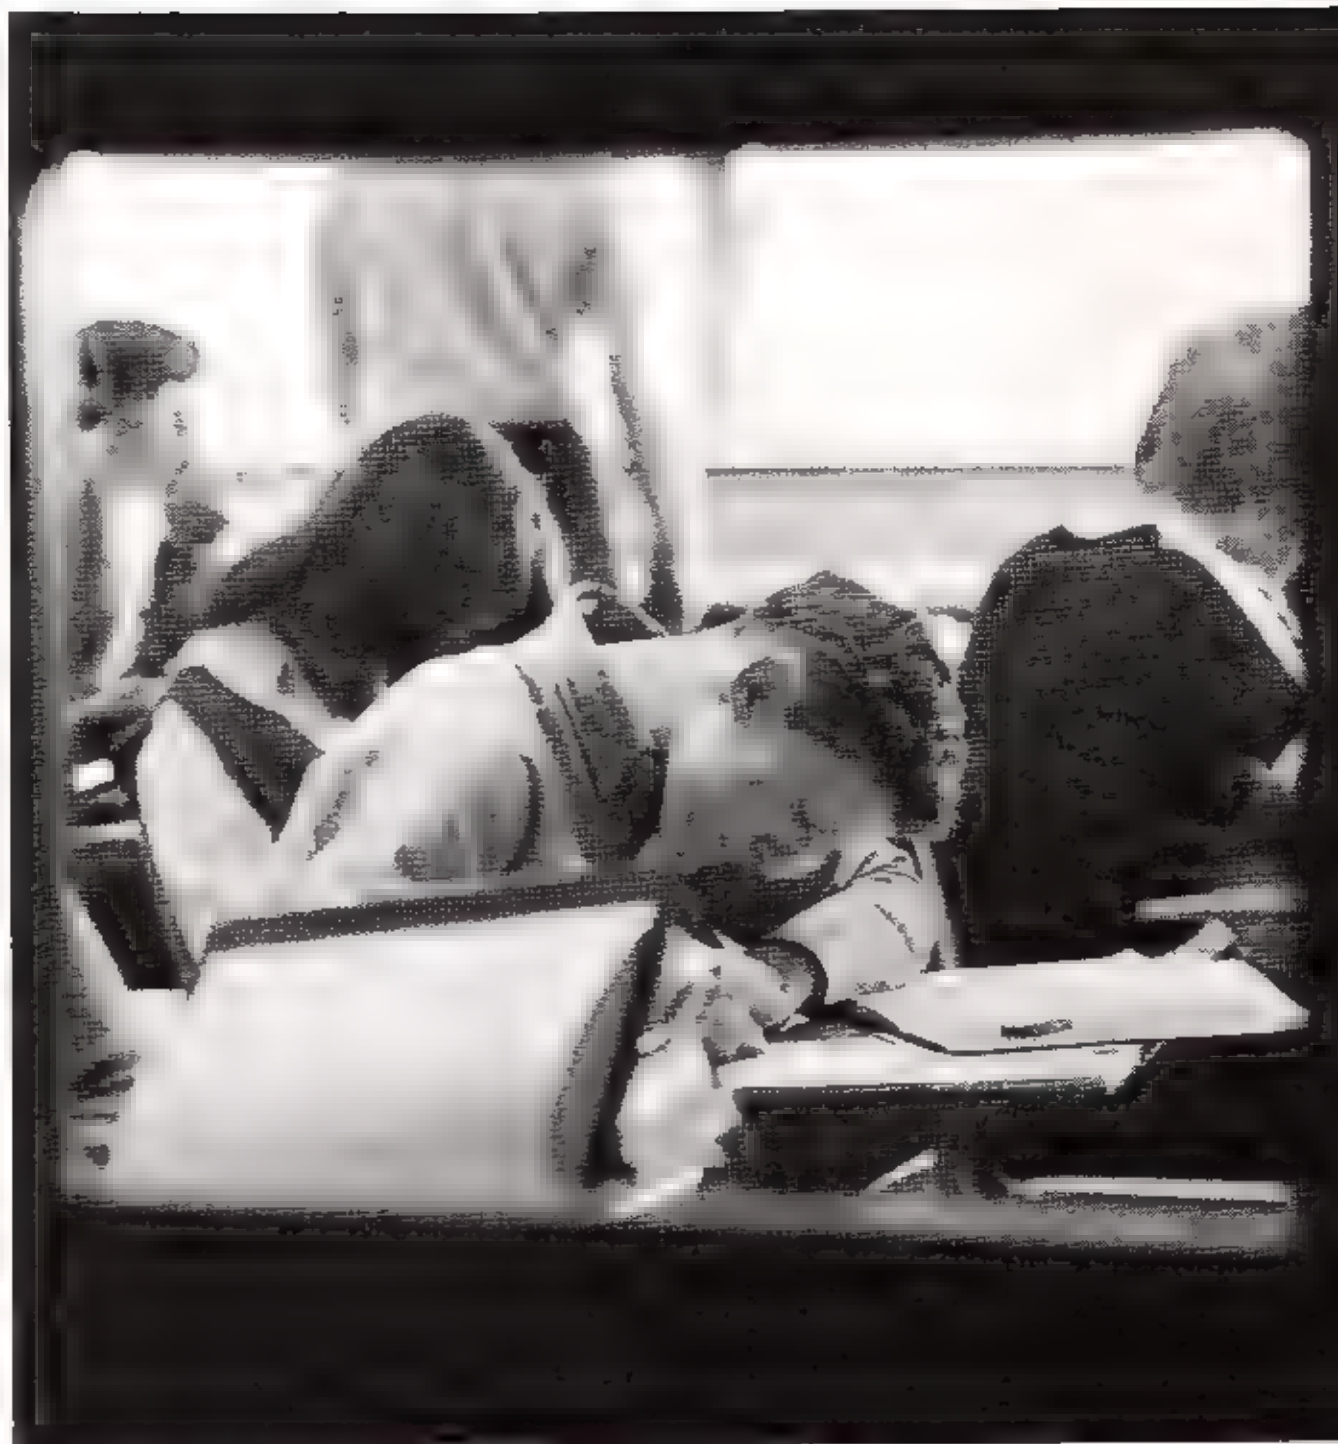

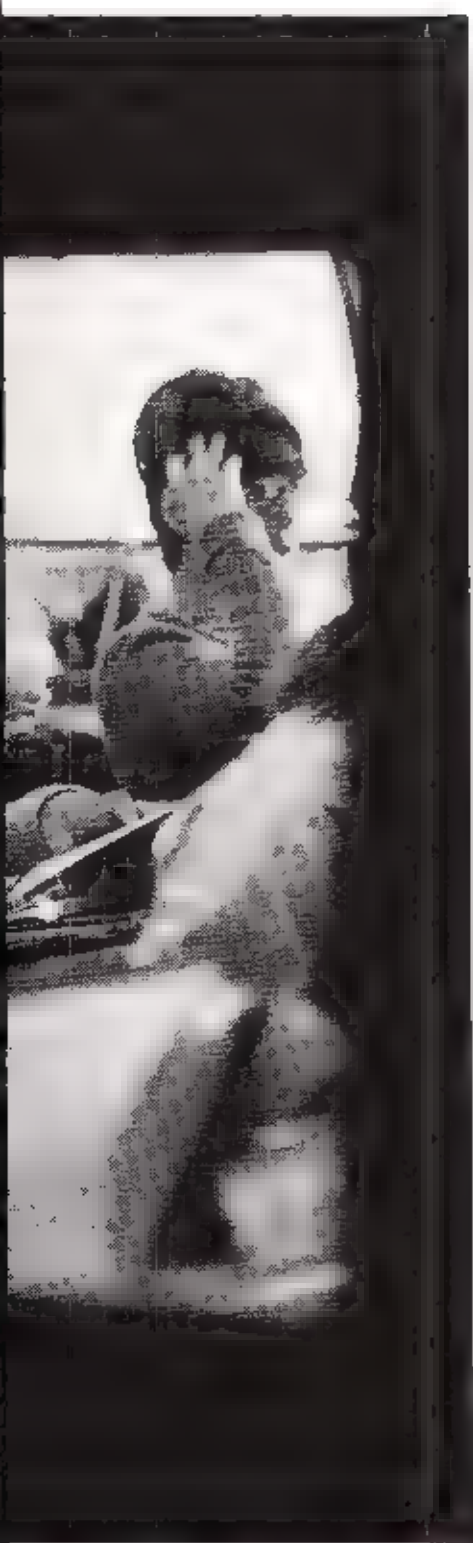

Such devotion

Such enthusiasm

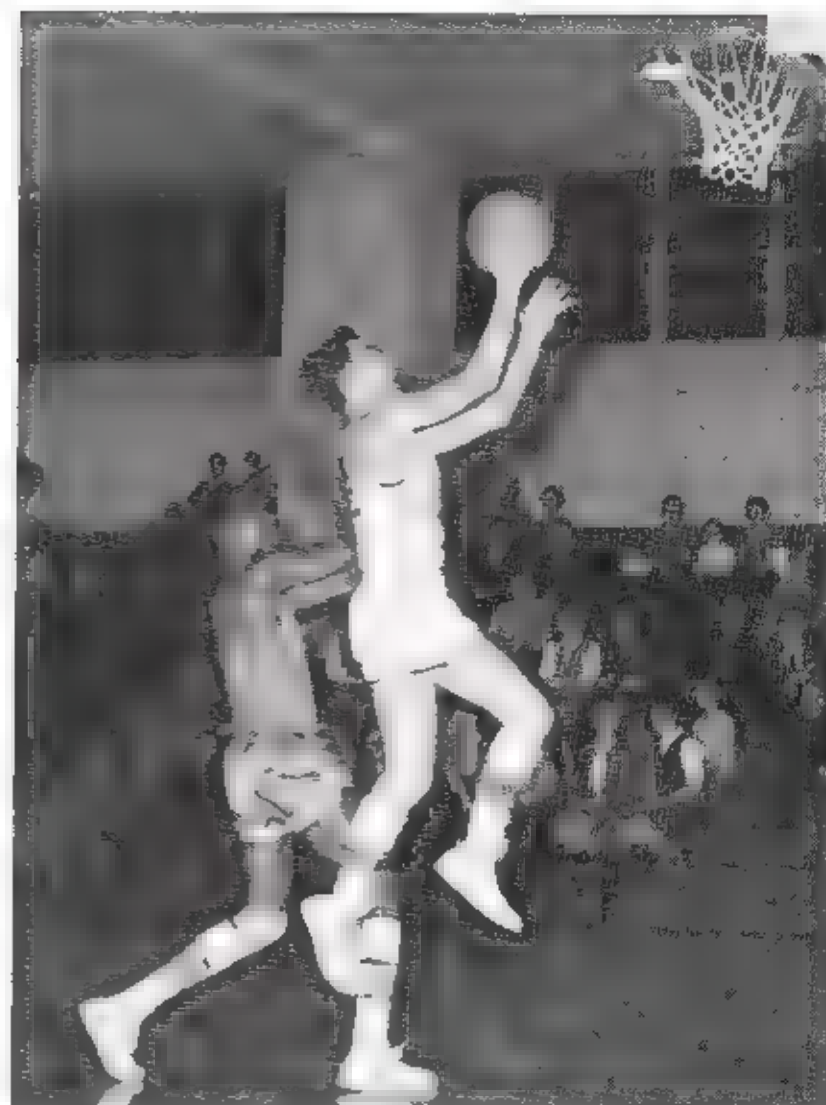

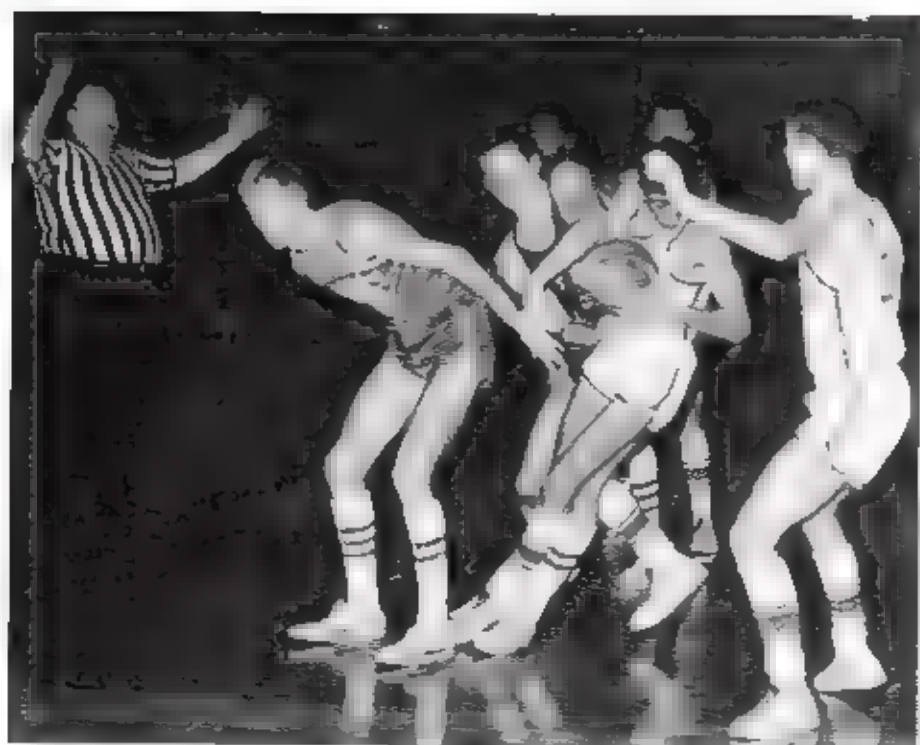

And with such astounding variety

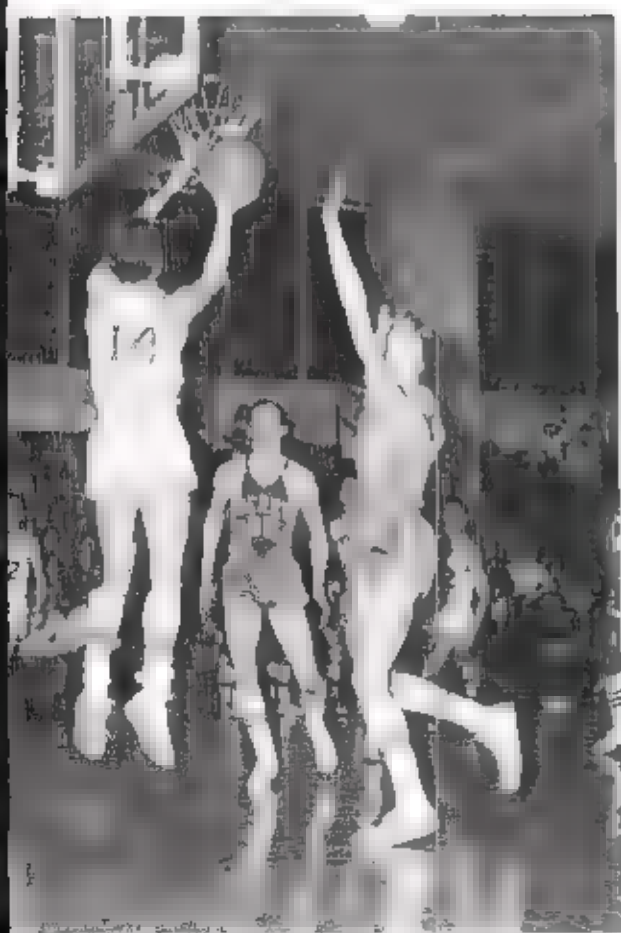

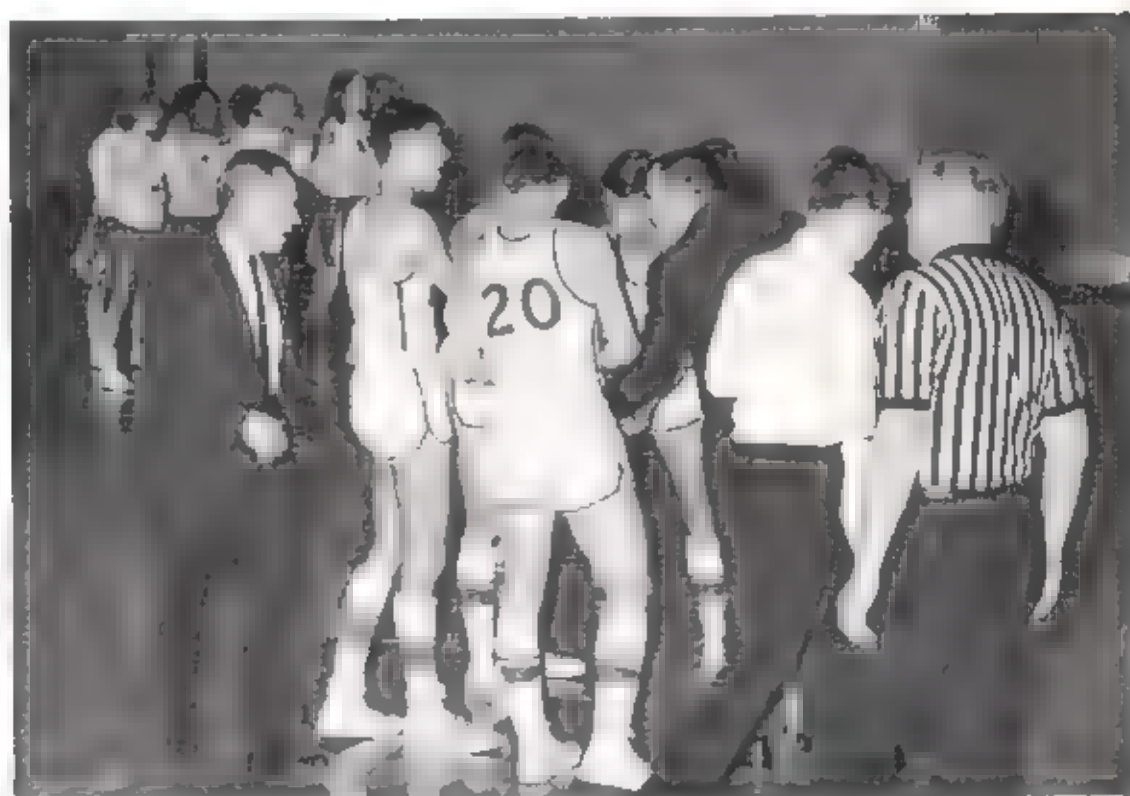

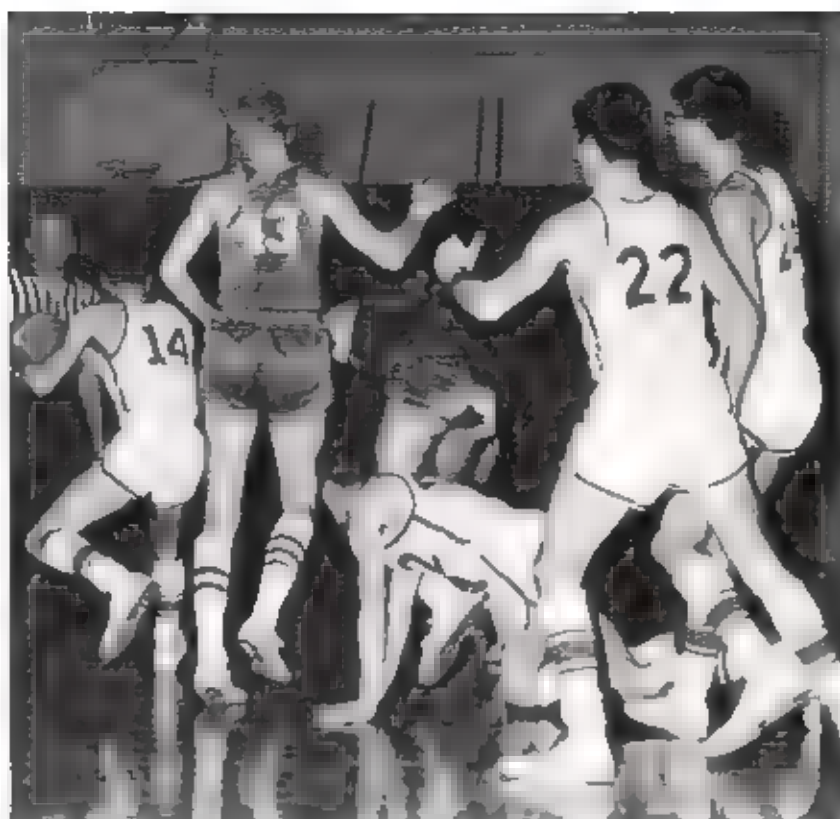

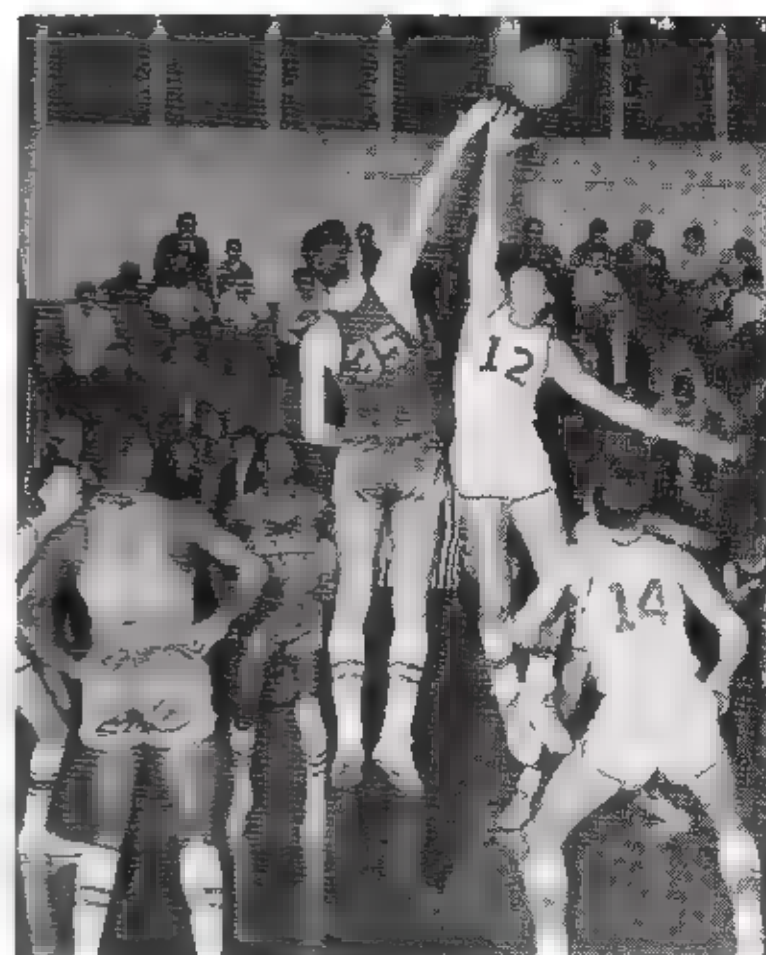

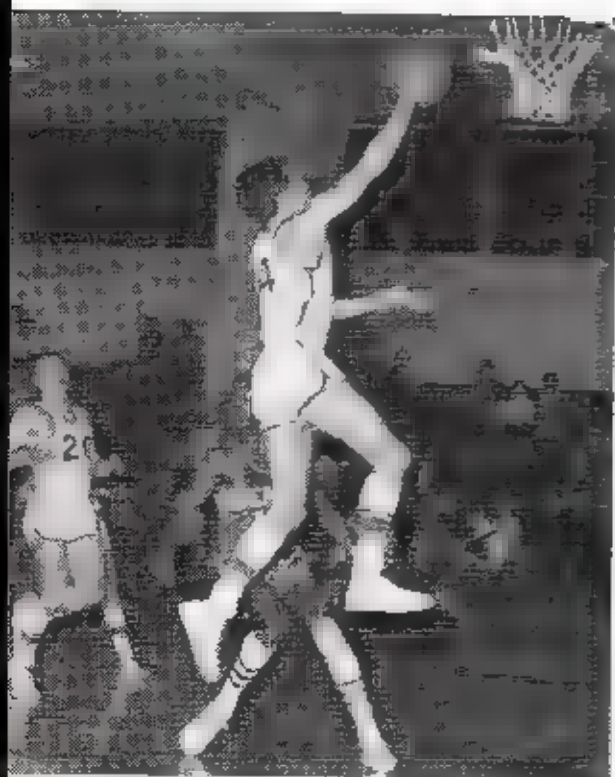

A world of knowledge open to our grasp . . . and yet we are not always ready to absorb it rebel, we become bored, or we try so hard it escapes us.

The clock ticks off the minutes as the
 Statisticians count up the fouls and baskets.
 Time runs out fast as the ball is bounced
 Up and down the floor, passed
 From hand to hand—overhand,
 Underhand, and around the hand;
 From player to player, team to team—
 In an effort to thwart the opposing team's
 Wits and maneuvers, plays and setups.
 Each player knows he is not an individual . . .
 But instead he is striving for the Perfection of a good team . . .
 He is playing for the team, and not
 For himself . . . each ponders the glory
 Of being a top shooter, but he thinks more
 Of working as a unit to defeat the opposition.
 There are many games, and many chances,
 Many tries . . . many successes and
 Many failures . . . it is a tough season,
 An interesting game,
 A fascinating sport . . . basketball.

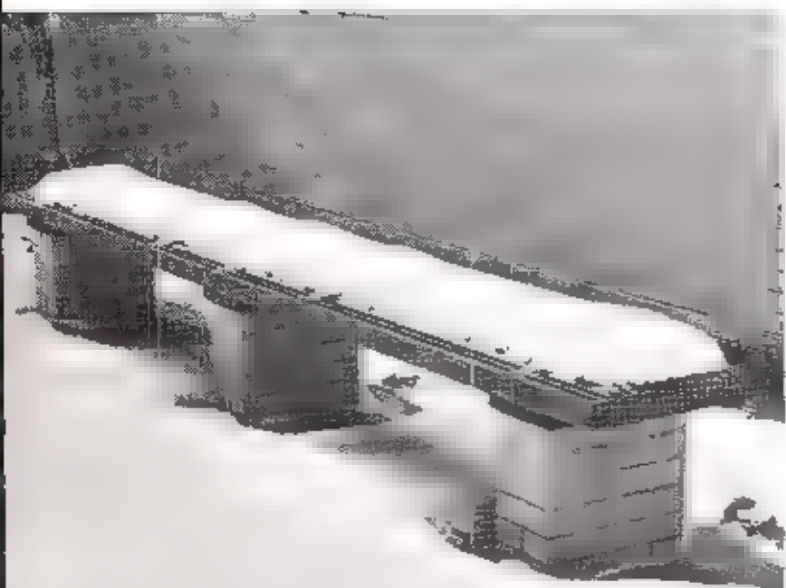

Swim until it hurts, and
 Then swim some more . . .
 The motto,
 The goal,
 The stimulus,
 The tormentor.
 This one thought has been in the Mind of each swimmer all year—
 To do his best, to win his race or relay or dive.
 Now in its third year,
 The swimming team is making progress . . .
 And these boys need our support and school
 Spirit to help them push their way up the pool,
 Practicing the tiring and strenuous
 Freestyle and breaststroke,
 Butterfly, relays and dives.
 They need encouragement to top
 This year's record of ten and five and
 To achieve an undefeated record next year.
 They need our faith in their work
 To better our third place finish in the County this year, to the first place next
 Year . . . which is not only in their grasp,
 But also well in the range of their abilities.

It should be the time of year when
 People hibernate and stay inside,
 Free from frostbite and snow,
 Slippery roads and icy sidewalks.
 It should be the time of year when
 No one has to venture outside . . .
 When we could remain by the warm, roaring fire
 To get warm and stay warm.
 But we must face the wilds . . .
 We are obligated to step out into the Harshness of winter.
 Every day we must put ourselves at the Mercy of icy, biting winds, and the
 Innocent looking snow—
 Falling softly and slowly—
 Building up into a mass of trouble.
 We growl and gripe the entire season,
 But we still enjoy it.
 We enjoy the frolicking fun of sledding,
 Skiing, tobogganing and ice skating;
 We relish the feeling of
 Complete freedom and security
 As we walk down the roads turned into
 White dreamlands . . .
 We find peace in the soothing rhythm of snowflakes;
 We feel the meaning of life in the sight of
 A lone bird's nest left in a bare tree;
 We find beauty in the clean, unmarred
 World of white.

Mistletoe and holly,
 Bright reds and greens,
 Jolly good spirits,
 Frost and a touch of snow . . .
 The deep, happy glow that comes with Christmas
 Was started off right at the Silver Bell Ball.
 A dance,
 A thought,
 A corsage to be saved.
 A memory of good spirits and joy,
 Of a visit from old St. Nick,
 And the crowning of the ROYAL king and queen,
 Bob Krautz and Sue Cramer.
 Outside, it was a cold winter's night,
 But inside the warmth and dancing
 Made the chill of winter a tiny bit warmer.

The few brave souls who venture out into the cold
 Go not unarmed . . .
 They are supplied with skis,
 Rough and ready boots,
 Parkas and woolen scarfs,
 Soft and furry hats,
 Warm and padded slacks . . .
 An abundance of good spirits,
 Determination,
 The will to get up and go
 And to stay up and keep going.
 They take excursions to the wildness of the mountains
 And have the time of their lives
 As they slip and slide,
 Plop in the snow and
 Become tangled in a jumble of skis and poles . . .
 But they bounce right back
 And try again . . .
 And soon they are on their way . . .
 Streaming down the mountainside
 In a gush of wind, freedom and exhilaration.

Miss Kathleen Hewston, Director.

A dream come true . . .
Of buying a house that was not really for sale;
Of tearing it down
When you didn't really own it;
Of vainly trying to keep your job—
But not quite reaching your goal;
Of battling a group of older women
Deadly opposed to your existence;
Of trying to please—a wife, two daughters,
An architect, a plumber, a small town;
Of succeeding, and finally building
Your dream house . . .

Not yet old enough to be Considered a tradition,
Our rifle team has proven itself
Capable of winning honors and Deserving of Spartan support.
The winners of the 1967 Section II
Championship, which is to the rifle
Team as the Foothills Conference is to football, winners of the WPIAL,
and runnerup in the PIAA State Rifle
Championship, the 1968 team is also doing quite well being undefeated.
The team members are to be
Congratulated for their fine record,
Their endurance, their faithful
Practice each day after school,
And their ability to concentrate,
Not a little, but one-hundred per cent on the shot at hand.
Although we can't support the team
by attending the matches, we do congratulate and respect them for
Their achievements.

A teacher's job is to be a guide, a good example of a human being;
 One with an education and able to give of his mind and learning to others.
 Teachers are often seen deep in thought, perhaps planning the next day's lesson,
 Or perhaps wondering how a poor student may be shown the way
 To a better, healthier outlook on life.
 Teachers show the way—
 They are pointers putting teenagers on the right road,
 They are the guides to education, to learning facts and common sense;
 Often they not only show the way, but also escort students to the office.
 The teacher is an example for each student to follow
 So that each will be able to point out the right path,
 To guide in the proper direction, his own children.

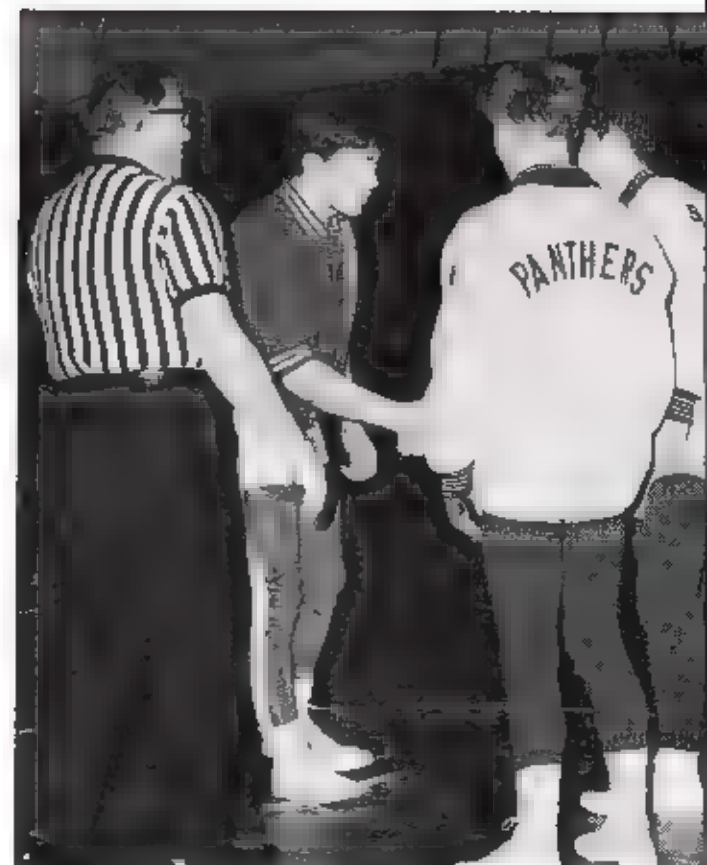

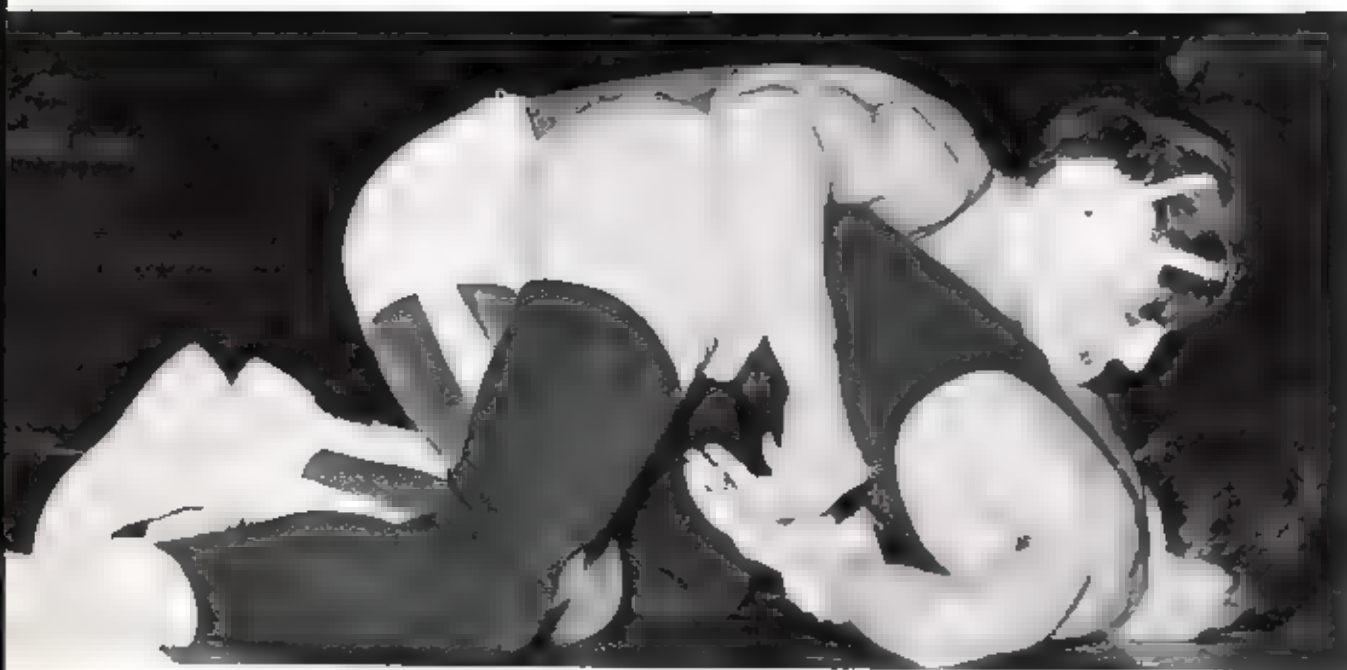

A make believe world of
Fantasies and dreams,
Of wishful thinking,
Is our escape world.
The chance to do what we want,
Be what we want,
And live the way we want—
This is the world of daydreams.
Many students seem to dwell
In the blurred but beautiful life of Dreams come true.
A boring class,
A simple lecture,
A sleepy mind,
A long, long period,
Can all be forgotten by
Slipping into the world
Of having things the way
You want them to be,
By making your mind so blank,
You seem to be in a trance,
With nothing to bother you,
Nothing to make you blow your cool—
This daydream world of
Escape, enjoyment, relaxation.

Those good ole days . . .
The quiet nights, the long walks,
The evenings spent strolling down lanes,
Crunching popcorn and
Dreamily riding the merry go-round,
Of sticky, gooey candied apples,
Of seeing grotesque side shows,
And . . . the dunking machines.
We took a step back into time,
A step up to the line,
We threw a ball . . .
And a Spartan took a splash,
The biggest splash of all,
At Greengate Mall.
It was an old-fashioned week of
An old fashioned carnival,
And good old fashioned fun!

A sport which involves the spectator,
 Not only in cheers and yells, but in
 Actual feelings of pain and accomplishment,
 Wrestling is a unique sport, and
 Requires different qualifications and strengths.
 The boys on the wrestling team need to have an
 Unfailing determination and stamina,
 An undetermined amount of knowledge
 Of holds and opposing weaknesses,
 A separate type of jargon, such as
 The high chicken wing and the half nelson.
 Wrestling involves two boys at a time . . .
 And they become knit closely together,
 Reaching out in mind and body to the other,
 Trying to outguess each other in the next move—
 Almost like a chess game with live people.
 They feel the tenseness of the other's muscles
 As they contract in a vice-like hold,
 Or relax in a moment's weakness.
 Each individual wrestler goes it alone
 And wins or loses by his own
 Weak points or
 Strength or knowledge,
 Endurance and stamina.

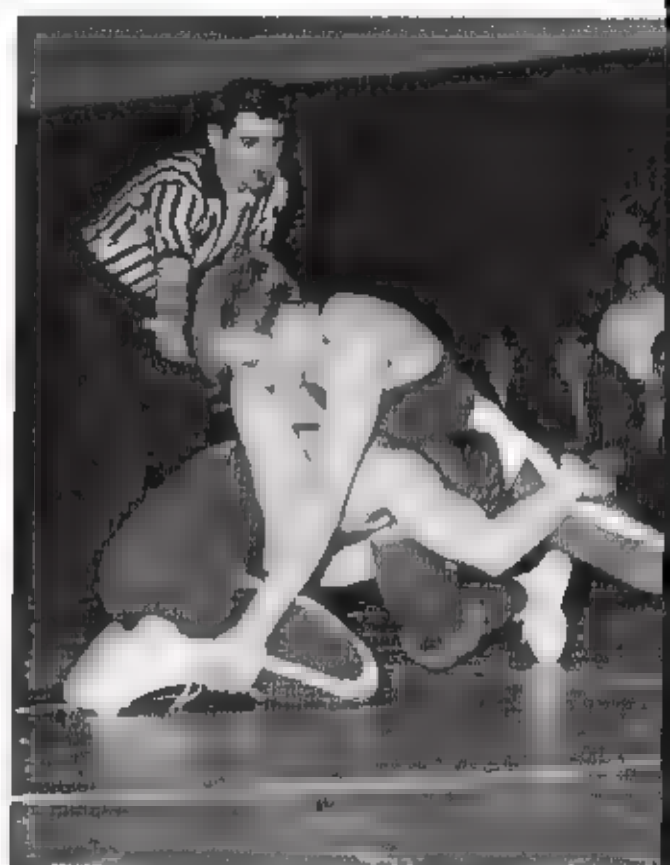

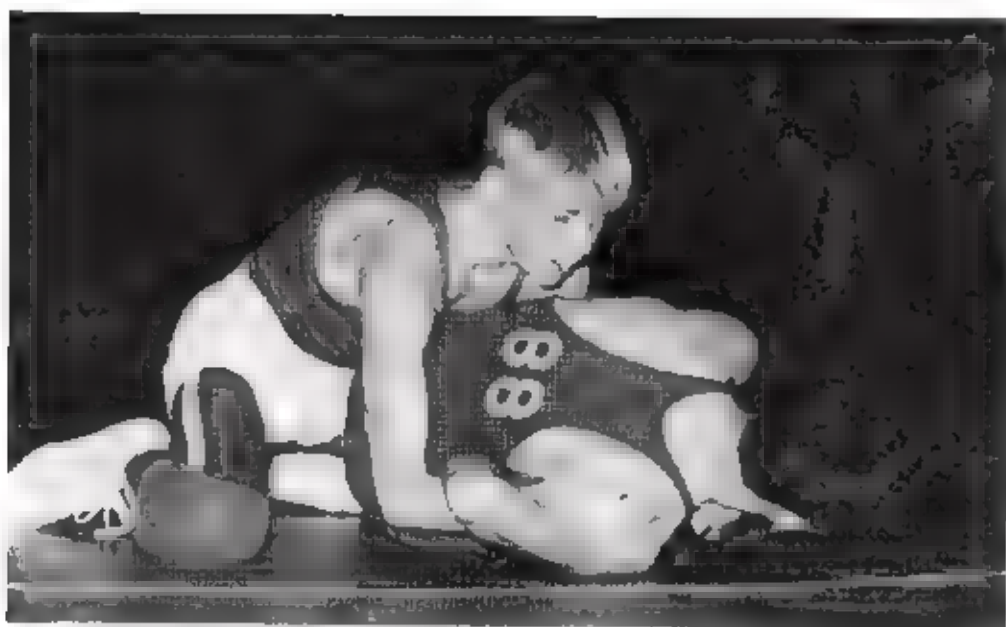

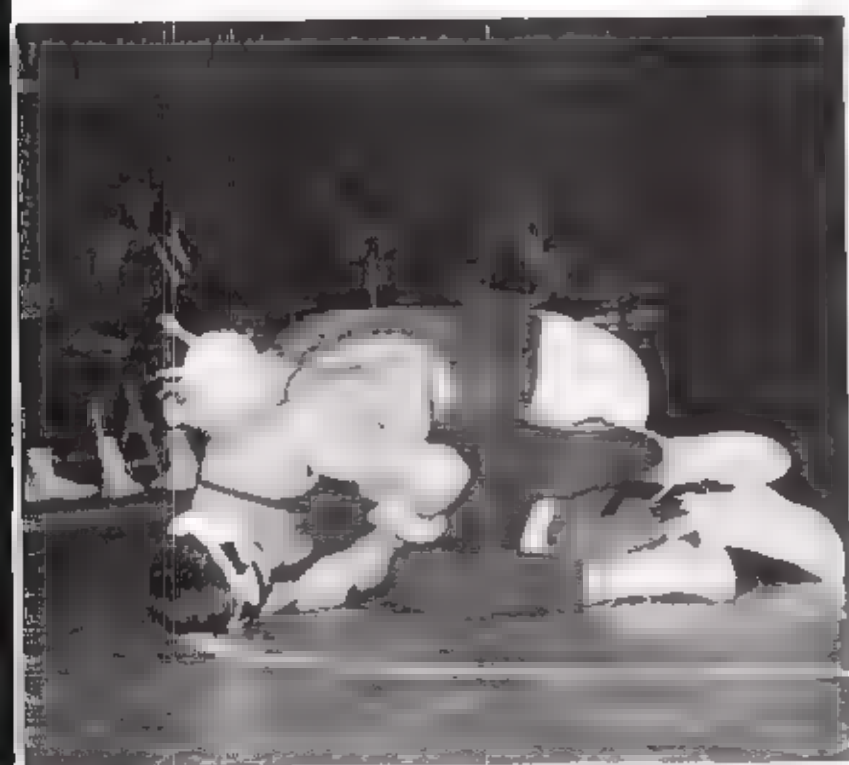

Absorbed and unaware of
The immediate surroundings,
Lost in a far-away world which seems
Light years away . . .
Longing for a better, more complete
Something . . .
Hoping for what only you know . . .
Detached from the present, and yet
Intensely alive,
Feeling every human emotion—
Fear, love, hate, anguish . . .
Lost in dreams and thoughts,
Desires and reminiscences . . .
An illusion,
An abstraction,
The reflections of an individual,
Of a multitude of beings,
Fused into one.

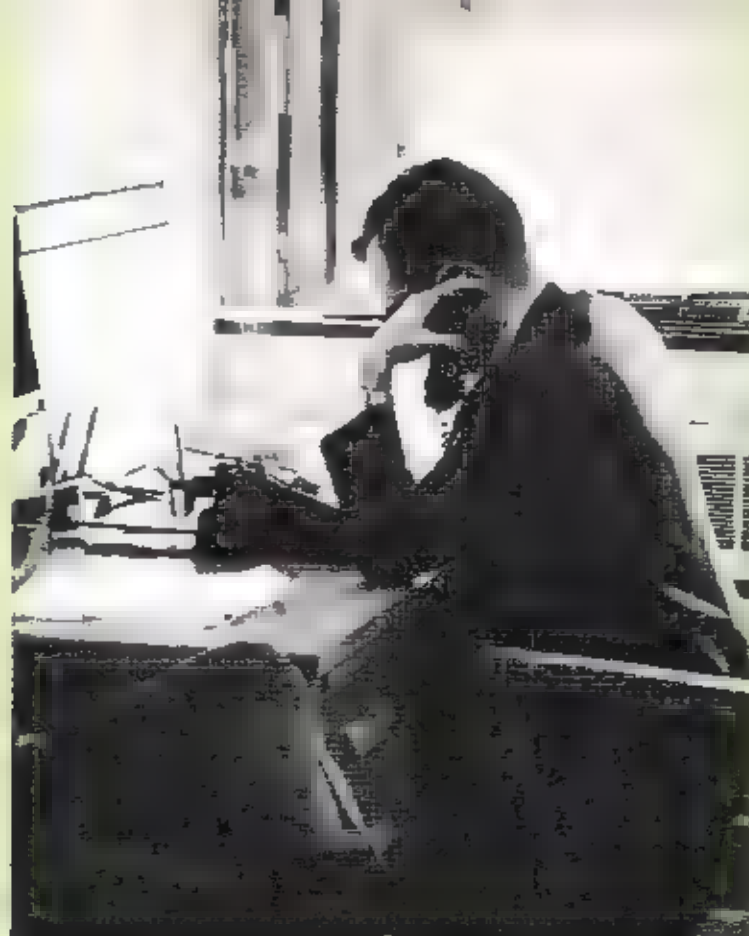

They are the pioneers,
 The first-time-at-Hempfield girls,
 The leaders, the beginners, the brave ones . . .
 They have started a girls' basketball team
 And are busy proving their capability,
 Their skill and dexterity,
 Their competence in the art of
 Passing and guarding,
 Shooting and making baskets,
 Winning and losing.
 They are trying hard,
 And should be congratulated for their
 Originality and stick-to-it-tiveness,
 Because, after all,
 Someone has to prove that girls are just as good,
 If not better,
 Than the boys!

A teacher isn't always
 Giving lectures and tests,
 Handing out detention and homework,
 He isn't always working,
 Helping slower students,
 Planning the next day's lesson,
 Or checking assignments . . .
 Teachers also have private lives.
 They enjoy a good time,
 A relaxing hour with friends,
 Sipping coffee and munching cookies.
 Teachers derive enjoyment from
 Giving their opinions on the world,
 On our school . . . and even gossip.
 Teachers, too, need to socialize,
 To rest, to think of their families.
 And teachers need to be alone . . .
 To plan their life, to dream, to hope.

Do we have a purpose in life?
What is our birth,
Our life,
Our death?
What does it all mean?
What is most important—
The actions we do now, this instance,
Or what we do as an accumulation of
All our actions over a period of
Days, months, or years?
Our life is a web of meaning . . .
Each tiny or despicable sin,
Each impressive or minute achievement,
Every thought,
Action and desire
Combines to form one complete
Maze which reflects our life.
For every deed,
Every mistake,
We add one filmy thread to
Our permanent record . . .
Our record of having lived.
It is up to us whether we spin
A tangled web . . .
One full of broken laws,
Of lying and cheating,
Of few accomplishments,
And numerous failures;
Or we could build up a beautiful web . . .
One of intricate design and detail,
A perfect construction to equal
A near-perfect existence.
Our future may be predestined,
But we still have much to do with it . . .
We live—
And as we live—
We prove that we are either
Worthy or unworthy of
This gift of life.

What is a friend?
It is a person who is much like you
Or rather one who is unlike you—
Perhaps the way you want to be, but aren't;

A friend . . .

Someone on whom you can rely
For favors and loyalty,
Criticisms and compliments;

A friend . . .

That one person in whom you can confide
Your opinions, thoughts, hopes, fears;

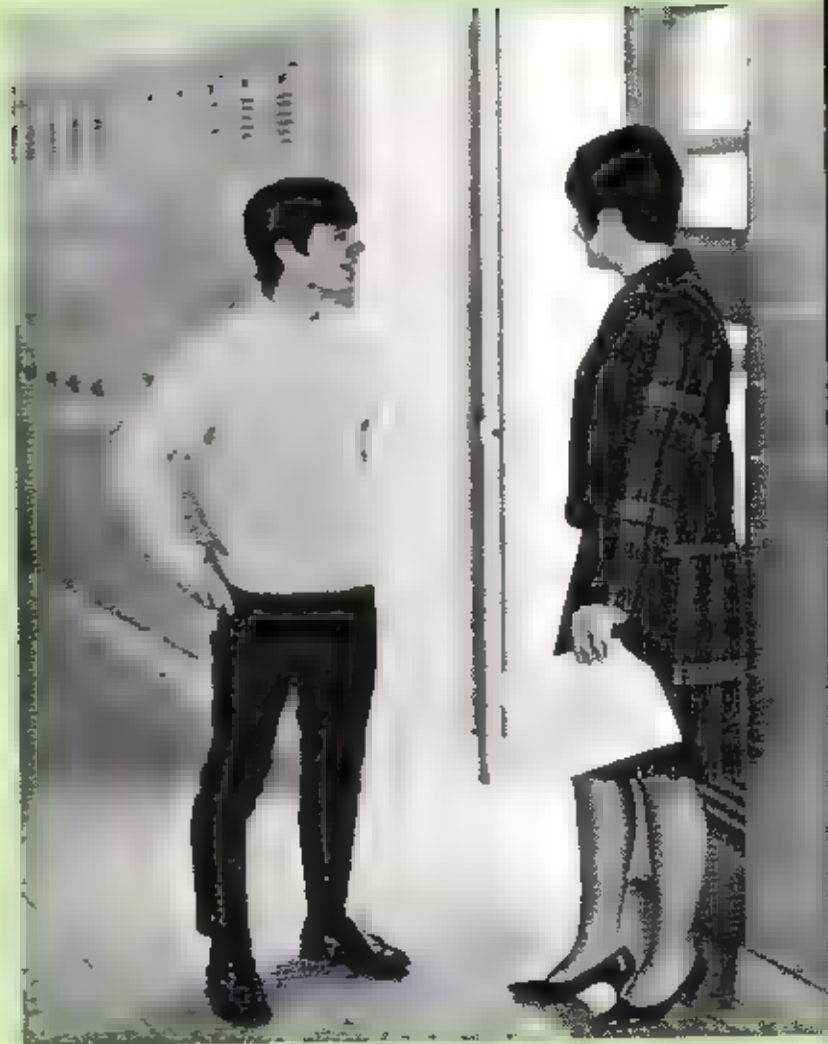

A friend . . .

One who emerges out of a crowd,
From a blur of faces;

A person who is enthusiastic about your pastimes,
And who hates the very same things you hate;

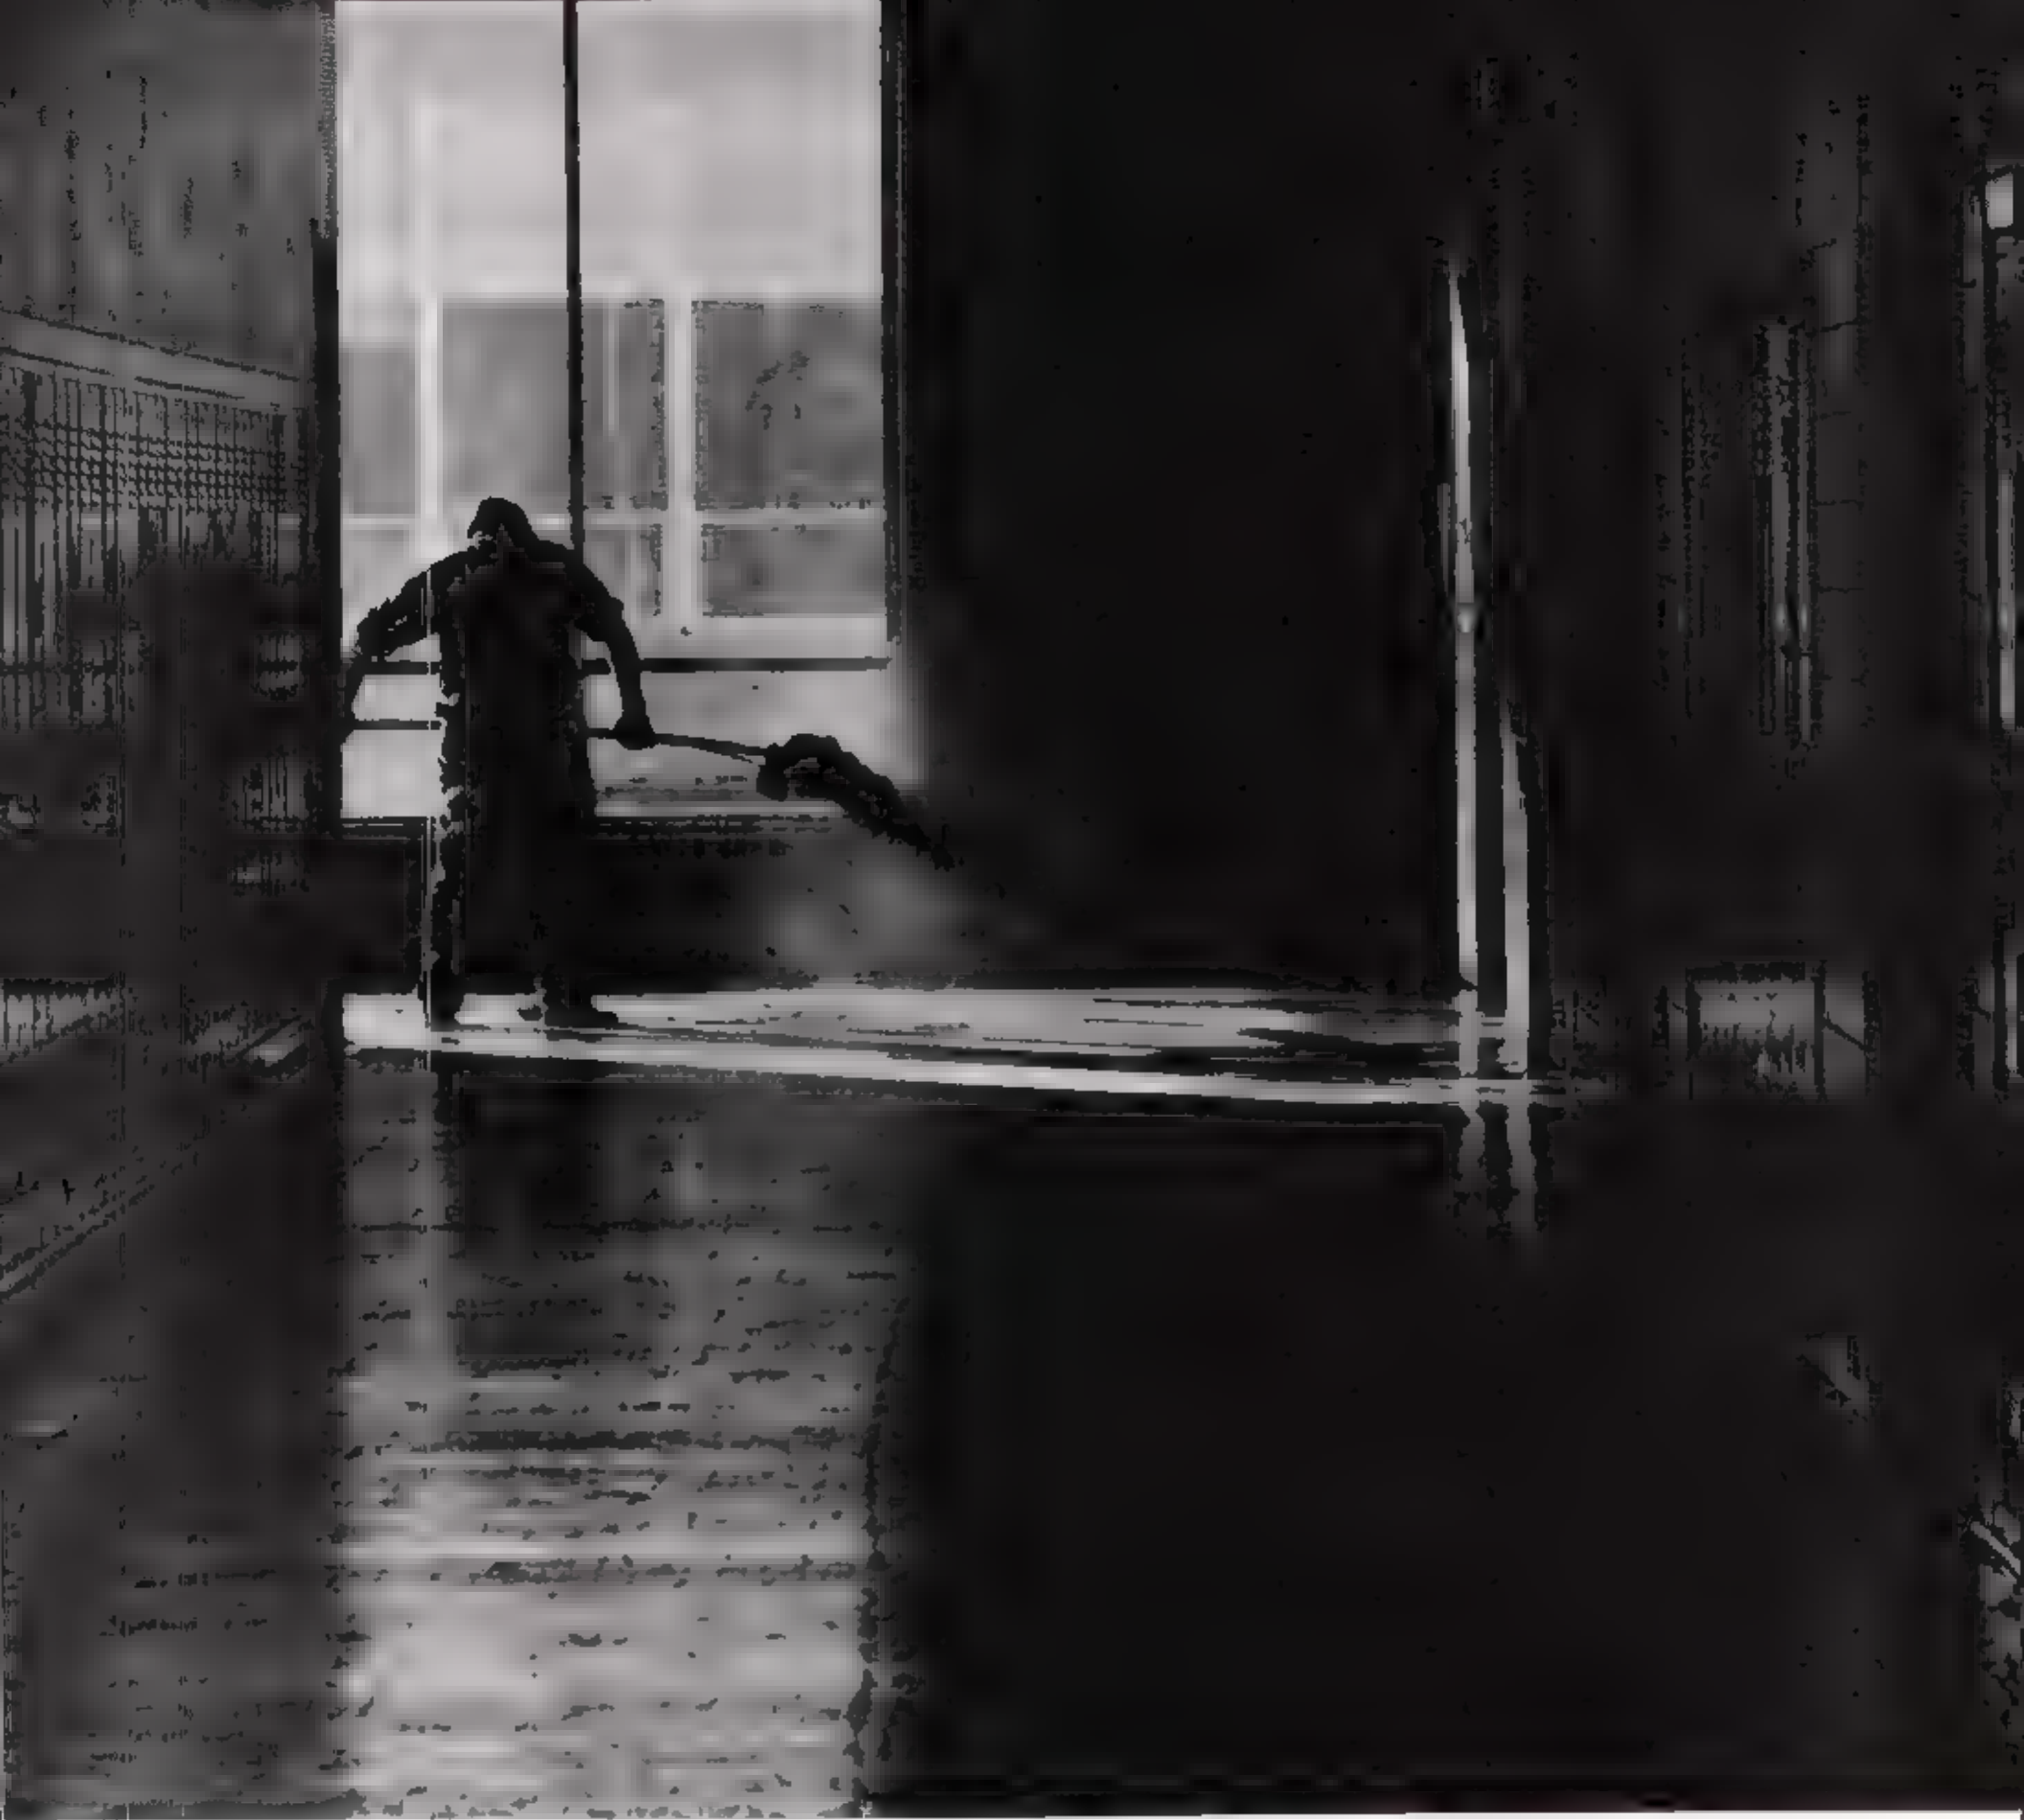

A friend . . .

A much-needed, often misused,
Tolerant and understanding person.

For many people, a school day does not end at the ring of the last bell. It continues on into the evening hours.

We always think, hope, plan ahead,
As each day, each month, each year
Comes and goes, we can hardly wait for the next
Sometimes, we become so involved with tomorrow
With the thought of getting out,
Of finally being free and independent,
We don't realize the good things,
The carefree life of now,
The fun of high school.
We skim through the days, never fully
Appreciating them until later,
Years later, when it is too late.
Each day, as the cars race out of the lot,
And the buses begin the slow trek home,
We think only of tomorrow,
Not of the day just passed.
We fail to realize the importance of our teenage life,
Even on the day we leave, for the last time,
As the sun sets on one of the Most important phases of our lives.

The carefree feeling of being a student, where you need only to worry about taking notes and passing tests, is refreshing compared to arguing with students, arguing with parents, and facing the everyday crises of school life. However, it is good to be back at Hempfield, and I'm happy to be doing my job again."

The image consists of a background of the word "SENIORS" repeated in a dense, grid-like pattern using a serif typeface. Overlaid on this background is a large, dark, and highly irregular scribble that resembles a thick ink blot or a shadow. This scribble is centered and extends across most of the image's width and height, completely obscuring the text it covers. The edges of the scribble are jagged and uneven, giving it a hand-drawn or organic appearance.

Would you believe an angel food cake?

Literary lovers browse through novels during National Honor Society book fair.

Lunch time provides a pleasant break in the daily routine of school life.

Mike Stewart will never Forget the honor
And the good times
He experienced during
His week at our nation's Capitol, Washington, D. C.
Mike was chosen as one of
The two students to Represent Pennsylvania in
The 1968 United States
Senate Youth Program
Which was founded so
That politically-
Minded high school
Students would have the
Chance to see first hand
The workings of the Federal Government and the United States Senate.
The students are chosen
On the basis of an essay,
Telling of their future plans
And also possible plans
For publication of the Program. Mike was sponsored
By Senators Joseph Clark
And Hugh Scott.
Mike's agenda included a
Visit to the White House,
And various lectures by
High government officials.
This was a great privilege
Reflecting honor on
Hempfield, our Student
Council, and its Sponsors,
Angelo Curiale and
Michael Mansour.

PROPHECY FOR MR. PASCHIS' FOURTH PERIOD PHYSICS CLASS

In 1975 you may see JIM ABRAHAM zoom by, still looking for a date, in his new sports coupe designed by General Motors which is now under the chairmanship of GREG LONGSTRETH. He will be without his long-time companion, JIM SOKOSKY, because Sokosky is still sitting at Hempfield High trying to pass Physics where we also hear that DENNY BIGGERSTAFF is the new assistant principal. A good place to look for a date would be out at the Red Rooster which is now co-owned by COLEEN TOBIN and SANDRA KUBINEC. While you're out there you may hear the latest smash hits of MIKE KODMAN or see the newest singing sensation, JOANNE LESNICK. And if you find a date, take her to Garden Center Restaurant where the head chef is KEN THOMAS. We have heard that CAREY PAHEL, on the PGA tour, and KAREN SERBANJAK, champion woman bowler, always go there to celebrate. If you like to travel far on your date, contact the JOANNE SMITH travel agency where she will arrange a flight with the airline owned by GEORGE WOOD to Las Vegas, which we hear has just been bought by DALE ROETH-LISBERGER. While you are there you might see MR. PASCHIS who is still out looking for rocks. His search has led him to many fine ones in the Rocky Mountains.
